Nouns

The gender of nouns (masculine and feminine).

Let's start our study with an alien concept to English speakers; nouns in Spanish can be masculine or feminine. You likely already know that masculine nouns typically end with an -o and feminine with -a but it isn't always that straightforward (if only it was). Next to a noun in the dictionary you will always find either nm (noun masculine) or nf (noun feminine) so if in doubt you should always check for the sake of accuracy. Knowledge of nouns will underpin a lot more later down the line, especially adjectives!

Masculine nouns

As a general rule masculine nouns typically end with an -o. However, some can also end with -e and -a such as: el día (the day), el agua (the water), el mapa (the map) or el cliente (the customer). Also, any noun which ends with -ma is also masculine, for example: el problema (the problem), el clima (the climate), el sistema (the system). There are several exceptions to the aforementioned rules but listing every exception is way beyond the scope of this workbook!

Feminine nouns

There are many suffixes which denote that a noun is feminine. These include: -a, -ción, -ía, -sión, -dad, -tad, -tud, -sis, -nza, -ie.

The number of nouns (singular and plural).

Not such an alien concept is that nouns can be plural. If the above suffixes denote a singular noun how do you form or recognise a plural noun? To save paper, because this workbook is already quite big, let's look at some general rules that will be correct in 99% of cases.

1. Just add -s if a noun ends with an unstressed -a, -e, -i, -o or -u. (los libros, las casas, los ojos)
2. Add -es if the noun ends with a consonant. (los catalanes, las flores, las ciudades)

Note

If a noun ends with -z you must replace the -z with a -c before then adding -es. (la pez → las peces)

*In a dictionary you won't find plural nouns listed because they are considered grammatical forms of singular nouns and not different words from a lexical point of view. The same is true of adjectives which are only listed in the masculine singular form (more on that later).

Morphology box - what is morphology?

Morphology is the study of words, how they are formed, and their relationship to other words in the same language. It analyses the structure of words and parts of words such as stems, root words, prefixes, and suffixes. Throughout this grammar booklet you will find morphology boxes which if you read will help you to improve the breadth of your vocabulary, make better connections between word families and deepen your knowledge of Spanish.

The Routledge Handbook of Spanish Morphology (Elena Arquiola, 2021)*

Articles

Definite and indefinite articles

Articles are very helpful because they tell us whether a noun is masculine or feminine and if the noun is singular or plural. Articles can be definite (the) or indefinite (a/an/some).

Definite articles (the).

There are four definite articles in Spanish which all mean "the" in English. Definite articles are almost always placed before a noun and you use them when you want to use the word "the".

The definite article for masculine nouns is "el" if the noun is singular and "los" if it's plural.

El gato. → The cat. (singular masculine nouns are preceded by the definite article "el".)

Los gatos. → The cats. (plural masculine nouns are preceded by the definite article "los".)

The definite article for feminine nouns is "la" if the noun is singular and "las" if it's plural.

La vaca. → The cow. (singular feminine nouns are preceded by the definite article "la".)

Las vacas. → The cows. (plural feminine nouns are preceded by the definite article "las".)

Indefinite articles (a/an/some).

There are four indefinite articles in Spanish which mean "a/an" (if the noun is singular) and "some" (if it's plural). Indefinite articles are almost always placed before a noun.

The indefinite article for masculine nouns is "un" if the noun is singular and "unos" if it's plural.

Un gato. → A cat. (singular masculine nouns are preceded by the indefinite article "un".)

Unos gatos. → Some cats. (plural masculine nouns are preceded by the indefinite article "unos".)

The indefinite article for feminine nouns is "una" if the noun is singular and "unas" if it's plural.

Unas vacas. → Some cows. (plural feminine nouns are preceded by the indefinite article "unas".)

Abstract nouns.

Abstract nouns formed with “lo + masculine adjective” are used in Spanish to refer to abstract concepts or qualities (things you cannot touch). By using this construction, speakers can create nouns out of adjectives, allowing for clearer communication and the ability to discuss abstract concepts more effectively. It's a linguistic tool that adds precision and versatility to the language. In English these sentences typically include the word “thing” and “how”.

Example “thing” sentences.

Lo importante es la salud.
Health is the important thing.

Lo malo es que está nublado.
The bad thing is it's cloudy.

Lo sorprendente es que saben español.
The surprising thing is they know Spanish.

Example “how” sentences.

¿Sabes lo interesante que es la historia?
Do you know how interesting history is?

Me impresiona lo fuerte que es.
I'm impressed by how strong she is.

Odio lo bien que él juega al ajedrez.
I hate how well he plays chess.

Exercise 3: Translate the abstract nouns below from Spanish to English.

Lo esencial

Lo trágico

Lo impresionante

Lo malo

Lo extraño

Lo interesante

Lo difícil

Lo complicado

Lo sorprendente

Lo tranquilo

Lo horrible

Lo emocionante

Lo sabio

Lo respetuoso

Lo creativo

Exercise 4: Work through the translations which all contain an abstract noun. Start from Spanish to English and then from English into Spanish.

1. Me encanta lo sabio (wise) que es mi abuelo.
2. No me gusta lo complicado que es la gramática.
3. The essential thing is that we listen (escuchar).
4. The interesting thing is that they don't talk (hablar).

Verbs

Infinitive verbs.

Verbs are very important and you will use one in nearly every sentence. They express an action. There are two verbs in the first sentence. Can you spot them? One is in the present tense and one is in the future tense.

Verbs are so important because simple sentences generally include a subject, a verb and an object.

The girls win the competition.

s v o

The verb you'll find in the dictionary, in most cases, will end with -ar, -er or -ir. This is an infinitive verb. Whenever you see the word "infinitive" in this booklet think of that!

Tenses.

Tenses in language indicate the time and duration of actions. They enable us to establish when things happened and provide essential structure to language. There are three main groups of tenses in English and Spanish: past, present and future and you must be able to accurately refer to these throughout your GCSE. But before we start to consider tenses we should have a look at subject pronouns.

What is a subject pronoun?

Subject pronouns clarify the subject of a verb (who is doing the action) and allow for clear communication. Spanish verbs change (or conjugate) differently depending on who is performing them. Including subject pronouns clear communication.

English		Spanish
I	→	yo
you	→	tú
he, she or ud.	→	el/ella
we	→	nosotros/as
you all	→	vosotros/as
they (uds.)	→	ellos/ellas

Exercise 5: Search for the meaning of the 15 most common verbs in Spanish.

1. ser

2. tener

3. estar

4. hacer

5. decir

6. poder

7. ir

8. ver

9. dar

10. saber

11. querer

12. pasar

13. deber

14. llegar

15. creer

Impersonal verbs

99.9% of verbs will need to be conjugated according to who is doing them (the subject) and when (the tense). However, 0.1% will only be used as gerunds, infinitives or in the "it" form.

llueve/nieva	→	it's raining/snowing
hay + noun	→	there is/are + noun
había + noun	→	there was/were + noun
hace calor/frío	→	it's hot/cold
(me) parece que	→	it's seems (to me) that

Key verb-related terminology.

Throughout this booklet there will be a big focus on verbs and tenses. It's important that you're familiar with some key terms which will be used repeatedly over the next 75+ pages.

Gerund

A gerund (or present participle) is the form a verb ending with -ing. In Spanish these typically end with -ando or -iendo. You will learn how to form gerunds with the present continuous tense.

Past participle

A past participle is the form of a verb which in English typically ends with -ed such as "played". In Spanish these are recognisable as they end with -ado and -ido. These are essential for correctly forming compound tenses such as the present perfect and pluperfect.

Infinitive verb

An infinitive verb is the form of the verb you will find in the dictionary which typically ends with -ar, -er or -ir or "to" in English such as "leer" (to read).

Conjugate

To conjugate a verb is to modify it so it agrees with its subject (the doer of the action) and is in the correct tense. To do this you usually start with the base of the verb by removing the -ar, er, or -ir so "llamar" (to call) would become "llam". Watch out though as some tenses will need the ending to be kept on and others, called compound tenses, are formed by two parts and are a little more complex.

Exercise 6: Use a dictionary to find the Spanish infinitive forms of these 27 high-frequency verbs.

1. To leave/go out

9. To think

17. To feel

2. To seem like

10. To allow, permit

18. To try, treat

3. To talk

11. To leave

19. To be pleasing to

4. To put, place

12. To wait, hope (for)

20. To write

5. To follow

13. To call

21. To work

6. To stay/remain

14. To know

22. To look for

7. To take, carry

15. To take

23. To start, begin

8. To find

16. To look

24. To understand

Adjectives

Adjectival agreement

An adjective must agree in gender and number with any noun it is describing. This means that you will need to know how adjectives change to agree with nouns they modify. Like nouns, adjectives can be masculine or feminine as well as singular or plural. Adjectival agreement means that if your noun is masculine singular like el gato (cat) then the adjective mono (cute) also has to be masculine singular.

Dictionaries only contain the masculine singular form of an adjective. Below, in the table, you will see how adjectival suffixes change according to the gender and number of the noun they modify.

Position of adjectives

Adjectives *typically come after the noun in Spanish whereas in English they come before.

Un gato blanco. → A white cat.
Un pueblo pequeño. → A small town.

*Some adjectives go before the noun such as possessive, demonstrative and indefinite adjectives (pages 11, 12 and 13) as well as shortened adjectives. The latter (called apocopation), however, is an A-Level grammar point and is not covered in this workbook, yet!

Adjectival endings with examples

The table below shows how the common adjectival suffixes -o, -e, -ista, -z, -or and -l change to agree with nouns of different genders and number. Adjectival agreement is considered one of the basics!

Masculine singular	Masculine plural	Feminine singular	Feminine plural
pequeño	pequeños	pequeña	pequeñas
importante	importantes	importante	importantes
optimista	optimistas	optimista	optimistas
feliz	felices	feliz	felices
trabajador	trabajadores	trabajadora	trabajadoras
especial	especiales	especial	especiales

Morphology: the diminutive -ito and -ita suffix.

In Spanish, the diminutive suffixes -ito and -ita are commonly used to indicate smallness or endearment. They are added to nouns, adjectives, and sometimes names. This linguistic tool adds a sense of affection, cuteness, or familiarity to the word. It enhances the emotional connection and can be used to express tenderness, playfulness, or emphasize the size or youthfulness of the referred object or person.

hermanito (brother) gatito (cat)
abuelita (nan) casita (house)

Do these examples denote smallness, endearment, affection or familiarity?

Exercise 7: Use a dictionary to find the meanings of the *42 most high-frequency Spanish adjectives (given in various forms). Remember that dictionaries only list the masculine singular form of an adjective so you may have to use the table from the previous page to work backwards before searching.

Intensifiers.

Intensifiers are used to add detail to an adjective or adverb and you should use them if you can! You've likely seen them a lot over the years but just to recap have a look at the list. There may even be one there you haven't seen before.

Key vocabulary:

un poco	→	a little bastante	→	quite muy	→	very demasiado	→	too
mucho	→	a lot
tan	→	so

Exercise 8: Categorise the adjectives from the previous page. Are they masculine singular, masculine plural, feminine singular, feminine plural or can they fit into various categories?

masculine singular

Upgrading low-value adjectives.

Aburrido, divertido and interesante are overused. Even if something is boring, fun or interesting there are a thousand and one alternative adjectives you could use to express the same sentiment. These are low-value words and we're going to replace them with better alternatives.

Exercise 9: Translate the short sentences below into Spanish paying attention to agreement between adjective and noun. Both adjective (in the masculine singular form) and nouns are given in bold.

1. The Spanish man (el hombre/español).
2. The new house (la casa/nuevo).
3. The unique town (el pueblo/único).
4. The long book (el libro/largo).
5. A rich woman (una mujer/rico).
6. A Spanish word (una palabra/español).
7. A poor country (un país/pobre).
8. A natural system (un sistema/natural).
9. The intriguing art (el arte/intrigante).
10. A possible idea (una idea/posible).
11. The political life (la vida/político).
12. The royal family (la familia/real).
13. The long night (la noche/largo).
14. The Spanish people (la gente/español).
15. A free man (un hombre/libre).
16. A different person (una persona/diferente).
17. A special place (un lugar/especial).
18. The main idea (la idea/principal).
19. An old friend (un amigo/viejo).
20. The necessary truth (la verdad/necesario).
21. The economic problem (el problema/económico).
22. The real thing (la cosa/real).
23. A national government (un gobierno/nacional).
24. A global issue (un problema/mundial).
25. A small city (una ciudad/pequeño).
26. A new word (una palabra/nuevo).
27. A strong woman (una mujer/fuerte).
28. A pleasant city (una ciudad/ameno).
29. The social issue (el problema/social).
30. A long name (un nombre/largo).

Demonstratives and possessives

What is a demonstrative adjective?

A demonstrative adjective is an English word like "this", "these", "that" and "those". These are very high-frequency words which appear across all GCSE topics.

Use a demonstrative adjective to:

1. Indicate a specific noun.
2. Clarify what is being referred to.

Being adjectives there are multiple forms of demonstrative adjectives depending on the gender and number of the noun described.

These can also be used as demonstrative pronouns replacing a noun in a sentence.

This, that, these and those.

This is how demonstrative adjectives change according to the nouns they are describing.

	masc		fem		neutral
This (s)	→ este	→	esta	→	esto
These (p)	→ estos	→	estas	→	estos
That (s)	→ ese	→	esa	→	eso
Those (p)	→ esos	→	esas	→	esos

What's that over there?

There is one more form of demonstrative adjective which refers to things "over there".

That over there	→ aquel	→	aquella	→	aquello
Those over there	→ aquellos	→	aquellas	→	aquellos

Exercise 10: Categorise the nouns below which are preceded by a demonstrative adjective.

that those

este boli	esos hombres	estos juguetes	estas bebidas	estos caballos
esas chicas	estas camisas	esa serpiente	ese ordenador	ese árbol esa casa	este plato	esta tableta	estas habitaciones	esta mesa
estas tiendas	esos libros	ese niño	este mundo	esas manzanas
esos adultos	esta presentación	este dinero	esa mujer	estos limones

Short-form possessive adjectives

Possessive adjectives do what it says on the tin. They show possession and are words like "my", "your", "his", "her". They are placed before a noun which they agree with in number and gender.

Mi libro. → My book.

Nuestra casa. → Our house.

English		Singular	Plural
my	→	mi	mis
your	→	tu	tus
his/her	→	su	sus
our	→	nuestro/a	nuestros/as your	→	vuestro/a	vuestros/as their	→	su	sus

Exercise 11: Combine the nouns below with the indicated short-form possessive adjective.

1. If casa means house then my house is:

2. If problema means problem then her problem is:

3. If trabajo means job then our job is:

4. If padre means father then your father is:

5. If manera means way then my way is:

6. If ojos means eyes then my eyes is:

Long-form possessive adjectives

Long-form possessive adjectives are similar to short-form possessive adjectives but differ in a few ways.

1. They are placed after the noun they modify.
2. They place more emphasise on the possession rather than the noun.

Foundation tier candidates are only expected to have a receptive knowledge of this grammar item (you can recognise them but cannot produce them) but Higher tier candidates should be able to use these.

These are challenging structures. To save trees I haven't provided a practice space for long-form possessive adjectives and possessive pronouns but there is lots online that you can watch to practise.

English		Singular	Plural
my/of mine	→	mío/a	míos/as your/of yours	→	tuyo/a	tuyos/as his/of his	→	suyo/a	suyos/as her/of her	→	suyo/a	suyos/as our/of our	→	nuestro/a	nuestros/as your/of your	→	vuestro/a	vuestros/as their/of their	→	suyo/a	suyos/as

Son amigos míos. → They are friends of mine.

El móvil es suyo → The phone is hers.

The addition of a definite article (el/la/los/las) before a long-form possessive adjective turns it into a possessive pronoun.

¿Es el tuyo? → Is it yours?

La mía está allí. → Mine is over there.

Indefinite adjectives

What is an indefinite adjective?

Indefinite adjectives are used to indicate a vague quantity and describe people or things in a general way. These are words in English like "a lot of", "some", "many" and "another".

Indefinite adjectives:

1. Are placed before the noun.
2. Agree with nouns in number and gender.
3. Are used instead of an article.

mucho ruido.	→	lots of noise.
poca gente	→	few people.
algún día.	→	some day.

A lot of.

masculine singular	→	mucho
feminine singular	→	mucha
masculine plural	→	muchos
feminine plural	→	muchas

Some or any.

masculine singular	→	algún feminine singular	→	alguna
masculine plural	→	algunos
feminine plural	→	algunas

Another or other.

masculine singular	→	otro
feminine singular	→	otra
masculine plural	→	otros
feminine plural	→	otras

All or every

masculine singular	→	todo
feminine singular	→	toda
masculine plural	→	todos
feminine plural	→	todas

Few or little.

masculine singular	→	poco
feminine singular	→	poca
masculine plural	→	pocos
feminine plural	→	pocas

Exercise 12: Modify the nouns by adding an indefinite adjective before each one. The ~ symbol substitutes the aforementioned noun.

1. If los libros means books then lots of ~ is:
muchos libros.
2. If el ruido means noise then little ~ is:
3. If las personas means people then lots of ~ is:
4. If la bebida means drink then another ~ is:
5. If el hombre means man then every ~ is:
6. If los padres means parent then some ~ is:
7. If el coche means car then another ~ is:
8. If la comida means food then a lot of ~ is:
9. If la cosa means thing then another ~ is:
10. If el tráfico means traffic then lots of ~ is:
11. If los casos means cases then in some cases is:
12. If los datos means details then other ~ is:
13. If la madre means mother then every ~ is:
14. If la gente means people then lots of ~ is:
15. If el lugar means place then some ~ is:
16. If el amigo means friend then another ~ is:
17. If el dinero means money then little ~ is:

Conjunctions

What are conjunctions?

Conjunctions are small, useful words which are used very often to extend our speech and writing in order to provide more detail or link ideas. Effective use of these can help you in reaching the top grades in your GCSE.

At GCSE level you will be rewarded for extended unambiguous writing and speech in which you have provided relevant and very detailed information in relation to the task set. Likewise, any facts that you present or ideas should be clearly expressed and justified.

The above paragraph includes language lifted directly from the top band of the mark scheme for the 28-mark Higher tier writing paper.

Common Spanish conjunctions:

también	→	also
y	→	and además	→	furthermore pero	→	but sin embargo	→	however aunque	→	although sino	→	but rather
no obstante	→	nevertheless por eso	→	therefore porque	→	because o	→	or
o sea	→	in other words
en cambio	→	however
por un lado	→	on one hand
por el otro lado	→	on the other hand
y encima	→	and on top of that

Exercise 13: Read the text about Spain and highlight the conjunctions before translating into English.

España es un país hermoso con una rica historia y cultura. En mi opinión, las playas españolas son increíbles, especialmente en la Costa del Sol. Además, la comida española es deliciosa; me encanta la paella y las tapas sin embargo no me gustan las pipas. No obstante, el clima es maravilloso, con mucho sol y temperaturas cálidas. Las ciudades españolas son vibrantes y llenas de vida. Madrid, por ejemplo, es la capital y tiene muchos museos interesantes como el Museo del Prado y encima hay el Museo Reina Sofía. En resumen, España es un destino turístico fantástico con una amplia variedad de cosas para hacer y ver.

Morphology: prefixes.

Prefixes can be added to the start of root words to create new meanings. Translate these verbs which all contain the root word tener (to have).

tener	→	retener	→
mantener	→	detener	→
obtener	→	sostener	→
contener	→	abstener	→

If tiene (from tener) means it has how do you say it contains?

Opinion phrases

Giving an opinion.

Throughout the GCSE course the ability to give and justify opinions will be a powerful weapon in your arsenal. Opinions can be given for every topic on the course specification!

Simply saying "me gusta" (I like) is the giving of an opinion but the inclusion of "porque es" (because it is) plus an adjective like "chulo" (cool) makes it a justified opinion.

In this section you will learn some common opinion phrases in the first person as well as some more complex, less high-frequency opinion phrases which if used will add some variety to your writing.

"Me gusta" style opinions and nouns.

If the noun which you are opining on is singular then good news, you do not need to change anything. However, if the noun is plural (check back to the nouns page if you skipped ahead then you will need to add an -n to the end of your opinion phrase.

Me gusta el gato. → I like the cat (singular).
Me gustan los gatos. → I like cats (plural).

In this case los gatos (cats) is plural so the opinion phrase changes to reflect this.

Opinions about verbs

More good news, you do not need to add anything when giving an opinion about a verb.

Exercise 14: Colour code the Spanish opinion phrases to match their English counterparts.

me gusta	me estresa	me apasiona	worries me	pleases me	winds me up
no aguanto	me mola	me aburre	I can't stand	saddens me	fascinates me
odio	me da asco	me fastidia	drives me mad	I really like	I'm mad about me encanta	me fascina	no me gusta	I prefer	matters to me	I like prefiero	me enloquece	me molesta	I hate	I love	interests me
me interesa	me entristece	me cuesta	revolts me	I dislike	bores me
me preocupa	me agrada	me importa	bothers me	I find difficult	stresses me

Morphology: morphological families.

Words which share a common root word belong to the same morphological family. The English word flower is related to florist, flourish, flourishing, flowered etc. The same happens in Spanish with una flor, florecer, florista, floreciendo etc. How many words can you link to the root work "equal"? Fill out the boxes below.

-------	--	--	--	--

Justifying opinions.

It's all well and good giving an opinion about something but now we're going to take the next step and justify it. To do so we're going to apply our knowledge of adjectives. At this point it's worth revising the nouns and adjectives pages as we're going to need to know the gender and number of any noun we're giving an opinion about and how to modify an adjective to agree with it.

Key vocabulary:

porque es	→	because it is porque son	→	because they are para mí es	→	in my opinion it is para mí son	→	in my opinion they're en mi opinión es	→	in my opinion it's en mi opinión son	→	in my opinion they're pienso que es	→	I think it's pienso que son	→	I think they're diría que es/son	→	I would say it's/they're Easy subjunctive wins!

The present subjunctive is used by lots of students aiming for the top grades and rightly so because it's a very sophisticated structure to use. But, there's no need to wait until you're formally taught it in class. We can use subjunctive set phrases to give and justify opinions right now.

me gusta que sea	→	I like that it is me gusta que sean	→	I like that they are odio que sea	→	I hate that it is odio que sean	→	I hate that they are *es bueno que sea	→	it's good that it is *es bueno que sean	→	it's good that they are *bueno can be replaced with any adjective.

Exercise 15: Work through the translations starting from Spanish to English and then from English into Spanish. Take your time and refer back to the pages on nouns and adjectives if you need to.

1. Me agrada mucho ir al cine con mi familia porque es emocionante.
2. El pescado me da asco, en mi opinión es horrible.
3. No aguanto hacer los deberes los fines de semana, odio que sea tan (so) pesado.
4. Los exámenes me estresan mucho pero diría que son importantes para el futuro.
5. I love going out with my friends (salir con mis amigos), I like that it's free (gratuito).
6. I hate Marmite because it's revolting (repugnante) and awful (horrible).
7. I love that dogs are loyal (leal) and friendly (simpático).
8. Love Island winds me up. In my opinion it's a waste of time (una pérdida de tiempo).
9. I find biology difficult but it's necessary.

Comparative phrases

What are comparative phrases?

In Spanish, a comparative structure is used to compare two or more things in terms of superiority, inferiority or equality.

The general rule is:

Subject + verb + más (more) /menos (less)
+ adjective + que + subject.

You can also use "tan", instead of "mas/menos", to show equality between two things. In this case you replace "que" in the structure above with "como" (as).

Comparing nouns.

Ana es más alta que María.
(Ana is taller than Maria.)

Comparing verbs.

Leer es más importante que jugar.
(Reading is more important than playing.)

Irregular comparative adjectives.

In English we wouldn't say "more good" but rather "better". Likewise, we wouldn't dream of saying "less good/more bad" but rather "worse".

The same is true in Spanish and these are mentioned explicitly in the course specification so Foundation or Higher, you will need to know these well! There are a few additional irregulars as well.

Spanish		English
Mejor/es	→	Better
Peor/es	→	Worse
Menor/es	→	Younger (for a person)
Mayor	→	Older (for a person)

Let's now do some practice. Notice in the next task how all of the adjectives agree with the first subject in the structure.

Exercise 16: Write whether the statements are true or false based on facts or your own opinions.

1. Los gatos son más grandes que los elefantes.
2. Los amigos son más importantes que los hermanos.
3. Mi profesor/a es mayor que yo.
4. Harry Styles es más guapo que Ed Sheeran.
5. Marmite es mejor que la mantequilla de cacahuete.
6. Oppenheimer es mejor que Barbie.
7. Las arañas son más monas que los conejos.
8. La comida casera es peor que la comida rápida.
9. Enviar mensajes es más conveniente que hablar.
10. Liverpool es mejor que Manchester City.
11. Los iPhone son más caros que los Android.
12. Los perros son más leales que los gatos.
13. La pizza es mejor que las hamburguesas.
14. El mandarín es más complicado que el inglés.
15. Stranger Things es mejor que Money Heist.
16. Radio 1 es tan popular como Radio 4.
17. Escuchar audiolibros es más fácil que leer libros.
18. El verano es mejor que el invierno.

Superlative phrases

What are superlative phrases?

Superlatives are used to emphasize the extreme or superior nature of something. They are often used to describe physical or personal qualities, such as beauty, size, intelligence, or age. They can also be used to express opinions or preferences about things. Superlatives help to add emphasis and make comparisons more explicit. They are commonly used in everyday conversations and descriptions.

Saying something is the "most".

The definite article (el/la/los/las) is followed by "más" and then an adjective.

- La más rápida → The fastest.
Los más caros → The most expensive .

Saying something is the "least".

The definite article (el/la/los/las) is followed by "menos" and then an agreeing adjective.

- El menos difícil → The least difficult.
Las menos cómodas. → The least comfy.

Common irregular superlatives.

Spanish	English
El/la mejor	→ The best
Los/las mejores	→ The best
El/la peor	→ The worst
Los/las peores	→ The worst
El/la mayor	→ The oldest
Los/las mayores	→ The oldest
El/la menor	→ The youngest
Los/las menores	→ The youngest

Exercise 17: Write whether the statements are true or false based on facts or your own opinion.

1. Haaland es el mejor delantero en el mundo.
2. Las patatas fritas son las más sanas.
3. La historia es la menos interesante.
4. Los gatos son los peores.
5. La música coreana es la más popular.
6. 1984 es el mejor libro.
7. Die Hard es la mejor película navideña.
8. El invierno es la mejor temporada.
9. Hoodrich es la marca más fea.
10. Londres es la ciudad más bonita.
11. En mi familia mi abuelo es el mayor.
12. Boris Johnson es el más honesto.
13. En los Simpsons, Maggie es la menor.
14. Mi profesor/a del español es el/la mejor.
true (fact)

Morphology: the -ísimo/a/os/as suffix.

-ísimo can be added onto the end of an adjective for emphasis and can be translated roughly as "very", "really", "extremely" or "super".

- bueno (good) → buenísimo (really good) caro (expensive) →
lista (clever) →

The present tense

Present tense conjugations.

It's time for our first tense!

Use the present tense to:

1. Describe what you do on a regular basis.
2. Provide facts.
3. Describe things which are happening right now.

The verb you are planning to use must change or conjugate so that it agrees with the subject (who or what is doing the verb).

Once you know who or what the subject is remove the ending from the verb (-ar, -er and -ir) and depending on the type of verb it is add the following new present tense endings.

Verbs ending with -ar.

yo	→	-o
tú	→	-as
él/ella/usted	→	-a
nosotros	→	-amos
vosotros	→	-áis
ellos/ellas	→	-an

Verbs ending with -er.

yo	→	-o
tú	→	-es
él/ella/usted	→	-e
nosotros	→	-emos
vosotros	→	-éis
ellos/ellas	→	-en

Verbs ending with -ir.

yo	→	-o
tú	→	-es
él/ella/usted	→	-e
nosotros	→	-imos
vosotros	→	-ís
ellos/ellas	→	-en

Exercise 18: Conjugate the verbs into the present tense using the table for support.

1. If hablar means to talk then you talk is:
hablas
2. If comer means to eat then we eat is:
3. If hacer means to make then you make is:
4. If leer means to read then they read is:
5. If estudiar means to study then I study is:
6. If reciclar means to recycle then you all recycle is:
7. If tomar means to take then it takes is:
8. If terminar means to finish then you finish is:
9. If donar means to donate then she donates is:
10. If ganar means to earn then he earns is:
11. If trabajar means to work then we work is:
12. If llorar means to cry then you cry is:
13. If viajar means to travel then I travel is:

Verb negation.

To make a verb negative in Spanish is quite simple, generally you can just add the word "no" before the main verb or verb phrase and voila! "Juego al fútbol" would just change to "no juego al fútbol".

nadie	→	nobody
nunca/jamás	→	never ya no	→	no longer
ni siquiera	→	not even apenas	→	hardly/barely ni	→	nor/not

Present tense irregulars.

Some very important high-frequency verbs are irregular and don't follow the regular conjugation pattern. On the right you will find a table of these conjugated into the first person with their English translations.

1st person		English	1st person	English
tengo	→	I have	estoy	→ I am
voy	→	I go	sé	→ I know
hago	→	I do	pienso	→ I think
puedo	→	I can	salgo	→ I leave
juego	→	I play	vuelvo	→ I return
soy	→	I am	quiero	→ I want

Present tense time phrases.

It's useful to have a bank of time phrases to fire off the present tense. You don't need to remember all of these but it would be wise to learn a couple so that you can be sure you're using the tense correctly. You could also use a desde hace structure in combination with the present tense to say how long you have been doing something, this is considered a complex structure (see bottom of page)!

Time phrases:

normalmente	→	normally generalmente	→	generally
casi nunca	→	hardly ever
a veces	→	sometimes
siempre	→	always
nunca	→	never
a menudo	→	often
todos los días	→	every day

Hoy es un día típico en Bilbao. me despierto temprano y salgo a correr por la Ría de Bilbao. Luego, en un cafetería, desayuno un croissant. Después, hasta mi trabajo en el centro de la ciudad. Durante el almuerzo, un menú del día en un restaurante cercano. Por la tarde, el mercado de La Ribera y compro ingredientes frescos para la cena. Por la noche, en casa con mi familia y luego salgo a pasear por el Casco Viejo. Finalmente, a casa y me acuesto, listo para otro día en Bilbao.

desayuno	compro	decidimos	vuelvo	visito
soy	como	me despierto	ceno	camino

Exercise 20: Translate the sentences below from English into Spanish. Irregular verbs are marked with an asterisk.

1. When it's sunny I play (*jugar al fútbol) football.
2. I always eat dinner with my family (cenar con mi familia).
3. Normally I go to (*ir a) the bookshops.
4. I hardly ever walk by (caminar por) the river.

Desde hace structures

Desde hace structures are used to state how long you have been doing something or to describe an event from the past which is unfinished in the present.

Juego al fútbol desde hace diez años.
I have been playing football for ten years.

No como carne desde hace seis meses.
I haven't eaten meat for six months.

Juego al ajedrez desde hace dos años.
I have been playing chess for two years.

The preterite tense

Preterite tense conjugations.

Here comes the second tense!

The preterite tense is used to describe:

1. A completed action in the past.
2. A sequence of events in the past.
3. An event in the past with a defined date.

Remove the ending (-ar, -er and -ir) and add the following new preterite tense endings.

Verbs ending with -ar.

yo	→	-é
tú	→	-aste
él/ella/usted	→	-ó
nosotros	→	-amos
vosotros	→	-asteis
ellos/ellas	→	-aron

Verbs ending with -er and -ir.

yo	→	-í
tú	→	-iste
él/ella/usted	→	-ió
nosotros	→	-imos
vosotros	→	-isteis
ellos/ellas	→	-ieron

Exercise 21: Conjugate the verbs into the preterite tense using the table for support. Irregular verbs are marked with an asterisk.

1. If hablar means to speak then you spoke is:
hablaste
2. If comer means to eat then we ate is:
3. If tener means to have then I had is:
4. If leer means to read then I read is:
5. If estudiar means to study then I studied is:
6. If reciclar means to recycle then they recycled is:
7. If hacer means to do then I did is:
8. If terminar means to finish then you finished is:
9. If donar means to donate then she donated is:
10. If ganar means to earn then he earned is:
11. If trabajar means to work then we worked is:

Preterite tense irregulars.

Some very important high-frequency verbs are irregular and don't follow the pattern above. On the right you will find a table of these conjugated into the first person with their English translations.

1st person	English	1st person	English
tuve	→ I had	fui	→ I was fui	→ I went	estuve	→ I was hice	→ I did	supe	→ I knew pude	→ I could	puse	→ I put jugué	→ I played	dije	→ I said
vi	→ I saw	quise	→ I wanted

Morphology: the -dad suffix.

The suffix -dad is quite common and it's useful to know that all words ending with it are feminine. Translate the following words which all end with -dad.

Spanish word	English meaning	Spanish word	English meaning
la calidad	→ quality	la felicidad	→
la edad	→	la ciudad	→
la sociedad	→	la verdad	→

By completing the morphology sections you are going the extra mile!

Preterite tense time phrases.

It's useful to have a bank of time phrases handy to trigger our usage of the preterite tense. You don't need to remember all of these but it would be wise to learn a couple so that you can be sure you're using the tense correctly. Some references to the past might require the imperfect tense but the following time phrases will ensure the need for the preterite.

Time phrases:

ayer	→	yesterday
anteayer	→	day before yesterday
anoche	→	last night
al otro día	→	the other day
la semana pasada	→	last week
el mes pasado	→	last month
el año pasado	→	last year
en 2023	→	in 2023
hace + duration	→	duration + ago

Ayer fue un día emocionante para mí en Granada. Por la mañana, me levanté temprano y churros con chocolate. Después, a la universidad para mis clases. Por la tarde, la Alhambra, un palacio increíble. Luego, caminé por las estrechas calles del Albaicín y tapas deliciosas en los bares. Más tarde, a mis amigos en una cafetería y charlamos animadamente. Por la noche, paella en un restaurante y mis amigos y yo a un concierto de música flamenco y hasta tarde. Finalmente, a casa y me acosté, agotado pero feliz.

probé

ganamos

intenté

visité

leí

tuve

me levanté

fuimos

fui

regresé

hablé

cené

conocí

Exercise 23: Translate the sentences below from English into Spanish. The infinitive verb and some nouns are given in bold.

1. Yesterday I studied (estudiar) maths, English and Spanish.
2. Last week I met (conocer) my friends in the shopping center.
3. Last year I went (ir) to Spain and I tried (probar) churros and paella.
4. Last night my brother played (jugar) Xbox.
5. A week ago me and my friend visited (visitar) Chepstow Castle.
6. Yesterday my parents ate (comer) a burger in Newport.
7. In 2022 Argentina won (ganar) the World Cup (el mundial).
8. The other day I watched (ver) television and worked (trabajar) a little bit.

The future simple tense

Regular future simple tense.

Our third tense brings us up to the Foundation benchmark allowing us to refer to three time frames (present, past and future). The future tense differs from the present and the past. For the future tense you need to keep the ending on and then add the suffix.

Verbs ending with -ar, -er and -ir.

yo	→	-é
tú	→	-ás
él/ella/usted	→	-á
nosotros	→	-emos
vosotros	→	-éis
ellos/ellas	→	-án

Future tense irregulars.

Some verbs are irregular in the future tense and require some consideration. The stem of some verbs changes to which the endings above are added. Below is a list of the most common irregular verbs and their new stems.

infinitive		new stem
tener (to have)	→	tendr-
poder (to be able)	→	podr-
hacer (to make/do)	→	har-
saber (to know)	→	sabr-
poner (to put)	→	pondr-
salir (to leave)	→	saldr-
decir (to say)	→	dir-
querer (to want)	→	querr-
venir (to come)	→	vendr-

Exercise 24: Conjugate the verbs into the future tense using the table for support. Irregular verbs are marked with an asterisk.

1. If hablar means to talk then I will talk is:
hablaré
2. If comer means to eat then we will eat is:
3. If hacer means to make then you will make is:
4. If leer means to read then they will read is:
5. If saber means to know then I will know is:
6. If decir means to say then you will say is:

11. If trabajar means to work then we will work is:
12. If salir means to leave then you will leave is:
13. If viajar means to travel then I will travel is:
14. If querer means to want then I will want is:
15. If bailar means to dance then she will dance is:

Morphology: the -ería suffix for types of shops.

You may have noticed that many shop types in Spanish end with -ería. Look at the following list and write down in Spanish what each shop sells.

Spanish shop		It sells	Spanish shop		It sells la frutería	→	fruta	la carnicería	→
la heladería	→	la joyería	→
la librería	→	la panadería	→

Can you think of any other shop types in Spanish which end with -ería?

Future tense time phrases.

It's useful to have a bank of time phrases handy to trigger our usage of the future tense. You don't need to remember all of these but it would be wise to learn a couple so that you can be sure you're using the tense correctly. If you want to more specifically give a date, including a month or a day of the week, then feel free to skip ahead to the page on dates in this workbook.

Time phrases:

en el futuro	→	in the future
el año que viene	→	next year
más tarde	→	later on mañana	→	tomorrow
pasado mañana	→	the day after tomorrow
la semana que viene	→	next week
el mes próximo	→	next month
este fin de semana	→	this weekend
el próximo viernes	→	next Friday

The immediate future.

There are two ways of referring to the future. You can use the future simple tense (the last page) where you would use the word "will" in English or the near future where you would use the words "I'm going to". The near future comes from the verb ir a (to go to) and requires an infinitive verb to be added after.

The near future

voy a	→	I'm going to
vas a	→	you're going to va a	→	he or she is going to vamos a	→	we're going to vais a	→	you all are going to van a	→	they are going to

English meaning

Exercise 25: Highlight the future simple verbs one colour and the near future verbs a different colour. Next translate the text into English using the vocabulary bank for support.

Mañana voy a ir de vacaciones a Barcelona. Visitaré la Sagrada Familia, daré un paseo por Las Ramblas e iré de compras. También tengo planeado disfrutar de la playa y tomar el sol. Por la tarde, voy a hacer un tour en bicicleta por la ciudad y exploraré sus hermosos rincones. Además, probaré la deliciosa comida catalana en los restaurantes locales. Por la noche, voy a ir a un bar y disfrutaré de la animada vida nocturna de la ciudad. Al día siguiente, por la mañana, visitaré el Parque Güell para maravillarme con su arquitectura única y disfrutar de las vistas panorámicas de la ciudad. Después, voy a ir al barrio gótico para descubrir sus encantadoras calles y después visitaré el Museo Nacional de Arte de Cataluña.

dar un paseo (to go for a stroll/walk)

rincones (corners)

maravillarse (to be amazed)

la vida nocturna (night life)

animada (lively)

calles (streets)

The active and passive voice

What are the active and passive voice?

Before we explore what these two mysterious voices are in Spanish it's best we look at them in English first. Before we do that we need to once more consider simple sentence structure in English. Simple sentences contain a subject, a verb and typically an object. In the active voice the doer of the verb is the subject and the thing which receives the action of the verb is the object.

El hombre come el bocadillo (the man eats the sandwich).

s v o

In the sentence above "el hombre" (the man) is the subject (s) of the verb (v) "come" (eats). The object (o) of the verb is "el bocadillo" (the sandwich). So far so good? This sentence is in the active voice. Let's now change it to the passive voice and see what happens.

El bocadillo fue comido por el hombre (the sandwich was eaten by the man).

s ser pp

What has changed? It seems as if the sentence has flipped around completely! The sandwich, formerly the object, is now the doer of the verb "fue" (was) and "come" (eats) has changed to "comido" (eaten). But, why is this? The passive voice is used to emphasise the action rather than the subject.

Constructing the passive voice

Higher tier candidates are expected to have receptive knowledge of the passive voice. That means you can recognise it but not produce it. Here is the structure which gives away if a sentence is in the passive voice:

Receiver of the action or object + the verb "ser" (to be) + agreeing past participle (+ por + agent).

El libro fue escrito (por Lara).	→	The book was written (by Lara).
El café fue bebido (por el hombre).	→	The coffee was drunk (by the man).
La batalla será ganada en el futuro.	→	The battle will be won in the future.
El vídeo será grabado mañana.	→	The video will be recorded tomorrow.

Reflexive constructions.

How would you translate "Spanish is spoken here" in Spanish? Nearly all Spaniards would use a reflexive construction which starts with "se" to which a third person verb is added in the singular he/she form (if whatever you're talking about is singular). If you're talking about something which is plural it's the 3rd person plural (they). The answer would be: aquí se habla español.

Translate these sentences:

1. Se vende agua aquí.
2. Se busca cocinero.
3. Se prohíbe fumar.
4. Se venden churros.

Exercise 26: Given that you are only supposed to be able to recognise the passive voice let's do some practice. Are the sentences below in the active voice (av) or passive voice (pv)? Translate them in the space provided on the right when you've finished categorising them.

- yo como una manzana. I eat an apple.
- la pizza fue comida.
- puedo hablar el español.
- llevamos uniforme.
- el león es temido.
- probaré tapas.
- la elección fue convocada.
- tus comentarios serán considerados.
- uso mi móvil.
- la decisión fue aceptada.
- el equipo gana el partido.
- el papel fue reciclado.
- Sonny marcó un golazo.
- el gol fue anulado por VAR.
- el libro fue destruido.

Exercise 27: Let's now take it one step further. In the following text highlight as many examples of the passive voice as you can. Remember you are looking out for forms of "ser" in any tense followed by past participles (typically ending with -ado/-ido).

Soy Kilian y me preocupó por los problemas ambientales en España. Reciclo botellas y latas para reducir la contaminación. También apago las luces para ahorrar energía. Además, planto árboles en mi comunidad para aumentar la cantidad de oxígeno en el aire. Ahora los árboles son plantados por mí y otros vecinos para mejorar nuestro entorno. En mi casa el año pasado muchas botellas fueron recicladas y mucha ropa fue donada! Pienso que en el futuro tenemos que usar más la energía renovable. Ahora la energía solar no es usada mucho. Juntos, podemos hacer una diferencia.

Months and days

Days and months are useful vocabulary items to have in your repertoire. They can help provide further detail when you're giving information about free time hobbies, when you study particular subjects or when extracurricular clubs happen at school. Interestingly, in Spanish the names for days of the week and months are not capitalised. To state what day something happens avoid the word "en" (on/in). You must instead use the definite article "el".

If you want to communicate that a certain activity or event happens repeatedly on the same day of the week then you should replace "el" with "los". This is exemplified in example sentence 1 below.

- | | | |
|--|---|---|
| 1. Los viernes vamos a KFC. | → | On Fridays we're going to KFC. |
| 2. ¿Vas al concierto el sábado ? | → | Are you going to the gig on Saturday ? |
| 3. El lunes mi hermano vuelve a casa. | → | My brother returns home on Monday . |
| 4. Mi amigo va a España el martes . | → | My friend is going to Spain on Tuesday . |

Months in Spanish.

el jueves	→	Thursday
el viernes	→	Friday
el sábado	→	Saturday
el domingo	→	Sunday
el fin de semana	→	The weekend
los días laborales	→	WWorking days
cada dos días	→	Every other day
todos los días	→	Every day

Exercise 28: Translate the sentences below from English into Spanish. The infinitive verb for each sentence as well as some nouns are given in bold.

1. Every Monday I play football (jugar al fútbol) with my friends in the park.
2. Wednesday I am going to (ir a) the shopping centre (el centro comercial) with my best friend.
3. On Fridays my dad always buys (comprar) sweets or crisps.
4. Saturday we are going to visit (visitar) my grandparents in Bristol.

segundo	→	second tercero	→	third
cuarto	→	fourth
quinto	→	fifth
sexto	→	sixth

Higher numbers.

Knowledge of numbers was key to correctly answering several questions in recent reading and listening past papers. On this page you'll learn how to form numbers from 1-100.

Numbers from 1-100.

Forming numbers between 1-100 is relatively straightforward (apart from 11-29). You start with a tens such as "trienta" (thirty), you follow this with "y" (and) and then add a unit such as "cinco" (five). The result is "trienta y cinco" which although translates literally to "thirty and five" means just "thirty five" in English.

From 21-29 this pattern doesn't work and you will need to do the following. Bolt the units directly onto the word "veinti". So, the result would be: veintiuno, veintidos, veintitrés, veinticuatro, veinticinco etc.

Exercise 29: What is the sum of the two numbers? Write your answer in full, in Spanish. "Más" means "plus" and "menos" means "minus".

1. treinta y tres más siete =
2. cincuenta y uno más cinco =
3. cuarenta más veintiuno =
4. nueve más veintisiete =
5. ochenta y ocho menos once =
6. diez más catorce =
7. noventa menos siete =
8. treinta y dos menos dieciocho =
9. quince más setenta y seis =
10. ciento menos cuarenta y uno =

Quantities: vocabulary about quantity features on the specification.

un kilo de (a kilo of)	una botella de (a bottle of)	un litro de (a litre of)	un poco de (a little of) medio kilo de (half a kilo of)	una caja de (a box of)	un vaso de (a glass of)	un montón de (a load of)
una docena de (a dozen)	una ración de (a portion of)	una taza de (a cup of)	una lata de (a can of)

*Los años + setenta (the 60s).

The time

Telling the time.

To tell the time in Spanish you should start with "es" (it is) if it's one o'clock and "son" (it is) for any other hour that's not one.

The telling the time structure is linked, once again, to singular and plural nouns. In this case "las horas" (the hours). Didn't I say that they would underpin nearly everything?

The "es" in "es la una" (it's one o'clock) is the 3rd person singular form of "ser" (to be) in the present tense as there is one singular hour but the "son" in "son las dos" (it's two o'clock) grammatically reflects that there is more than one hour. It just has to be this way!

Minutes after the hour are introduced with "y" (and). Minutes before the hour are introduced with "menos" (to).

y cinco	→	five past
y cuarto	→	quarter past
y veinte	→	twenty past
y media	→	half past

menos cinco	→	five to menos cuarto	→	quarter to menos veinte	→	twenty to

These can be combined with the above structure using "es" and "son" to give more exact times:

Son las tres y cuarto.
(It's 3:15)

We can then add on "de la mañana" (in the morning), "de la tarde" (in the afternoon) or "de la noche" (at night) to clarify further.

Asking for the time.

- ¿Qué hora es? → What time is it?
¿Tienes la hora? → Do you have the time?

Exercise 30: Write the times using the the 24-hour clock format. See the box below for times indicated with an asterisk.

1. Son las dos y media de la mañana.
2. Son las nueve y cuarto de la mañana.
3. Es la una de la tarde.
4. Son las cinco y diez de la tarde.
5. Es la *madrugada.
6. Son las seis y media de la mañana.
7. Son las ocho de la noche.
8. Es *mediodía.
9. Son las tres menos cuarto de la tarde.
10. *Es la medianoche.
11. Son las diez menos cinco de la mañana.
12. Son las once de la noche.
13. Es el *amanecer.
14. Son las cuatro y media de la tarde.
15. Son las dos en punto de la mañana.

Being more specific.

mediodía	→	noon/midday
medianoche	→	midnight
el amanecer	→	dawn/sunrise
la madrugada	→	dawn/sunrise
en punto	→	on the dot/exactly

Stating the time when something happens.

On the last page we learnt how to tell the time but we're now going to see how we can use the time to describe when something happens, happened or will happen. Luckily, this is quite easy. We are going to almost replicate the structure from before which was "es/son" + "la hora/las horas" but we're going to change the "es/son" for "a la/las". Once again, we will use "a la" when referring to any hour with "one" in it and "a las" for any time given that doesn't. We can now add an appropriate verb phrase to the end.

A las dos de la tarde voy a ir al parque.	→	At 14:00 I'm going to go to the park.
A la una de la tarde me gusta leer.	→	At 13:00 I like to read.

Exercise 31: Translate the sentences which all combine a specific time reference with a verb in either the present, past, future or immediate future tense. Verb phrases and some nouns are given in bold.

1. A las tres y cuarto de la tarde empieza el club de ajedrez (chess club).
2. Normalmente a las ocho de la mañana los estudiantes leen en la biblioteca.
3. Mañana a las cuatro de la tarde vamos a ver a las gemelas (twins).
4. Las tiendas abren a las nueve de la mañana y cierran a las cinco en punto.
5. A las nueve de la noche cenamos en familia y hablamos un poco sobre el día.
6. El partido de fútbol empieza a las ocho en punto de la noche.
7. A las diez y cuarto de la mañana cogimos el tren y llegamos a las once y media.
8. At 6:00am I'm going to leave (salir).
9. At 10:30am I will eat breakfast (desayunar) in Cardiff.
10. At 11:30pm we listened (escuchar) to music and danced (bailar).
11. At midday I'm going (ir) to go to the coffee shop (la cafetería) but at 13:00 I will leave (salir).
12. On Mondays at 9:00am my sister goes (ir) to the swimming pool (la piscina).
13. At midnight I like to listen (escuchar) to peaceful music.
14. Every Saturday we go (ir) to the market and have lunch (almorzar).

Reflexive verbs

What are reflexive verbs?

A reflexive verb is a special kind of verb that shows that the object and subject in a sentence are the same entity.

The girl brushes her teeth.

s v o

The object above (teeth), despite not being a person, is a part of the person performing the action and so the verb is reflexive. The subject and object are the same.

Reflexive verbs in Spanish are recognisable because in the infinitive form they end with -se. Some common reflexives include:

Infinitive		English meaning
lavarse	→	to wash oneself
ponerse	→	to put on (clothes).
cepillarse	→	to brush one's teeth
ducharse	→	to shower oneself maquillarse	→	to put make up on

To conjugate a reflexive verb firstly conjugate the stem verb before the -se suffix in the desired tense and person.

You can now deal with the -se suffix. You will need to add the correct reflexive pronoun, depending on the verb subject, before the conjugated verb.

Me ducho por la noche (I shower at night).
↑
reflexive pronoun

Reflexive pronouns in English and Spanish.

myself	→	me
yourself	→	te
his/her/itself	→	se
ourselves	→	nos
yourselves	→	os
themselves	→	se

Exercise 32: Conjugate the following reflexive verbs using the table for support. The first one is done for you.

- If ducharse means to shower then I shower is:
me ducho
- If bañarse means to bathe then he bathes is:
- If maquillarse means to put on make up then I put makeup on is:
- If afeitarse means to shave then you shave is:
- If lavarse means to wash oneself then you wash yourself is:
- If cepillarse los dientes means to clean your teeth then I clean my teeth is:

Exercise 33: Read the text below and highlight the reflexive verbs one colour and the normal present tense verbs a different colour.

Me despierto temprano a las 7 de la mañana. Me levanto de la cama y me lavo la cara. Luego, me cepillo los dientes y me peino el cabello. Después, me visto y me pongo los zapatos. Después de arreglarme, voy a la cocina y preparo el desayuno. Me gusta beber un vaso de jugo de naranja y comer unas tostadas con mantequilla. Después de desayunar, recojo la mesa y lavo los platos. Después de eso, voy al colegio en autobús. Durante el viaje leo un libro o me maquillo. En el colegio hablo con mis amigos y estudiamos el español.

Morphology: reflexive gerunds.

The gerund is the verb form ending with -ing. In Spanish they typically end with -ando or -iendo. Reflexive pronouns can attach onto the end of a gerund.

lavarse (to wash)	→	lavandome (washing myself)
ducharse (to shower)	→
ponerse (to put on)	→

Exercise 34: Are the verbs below reflexive or not? Tick them if they are, put a cross besides the verbs which aren't reflexive.

Exercise 35: Describe a typical day of yours using the verbs above. You will need to conjugate these verbs into the present tense. Remember that reflexive verbs require a reflexive pronoun before the conjugated stem verb. Try to reference the telling the time phrases you learnt two pages ago!

Infinitive structures

What are infinitive structures?

When all is said and done we can probably agree that learning verb conjugations for the present, past and future is no small task and that's before we consider tenses like the present perfect, conditional and imperfect, amongst others. What if there were a way to use these tenses freely, give our working memory a break and remain accurate in our speech and writing? Luckily for you such a way exists and it's another powerful weapon in our armoury. We can use infinitive structures to our advantage. An infinitive structure, for the purposes of this resource, is a pre-conjugated verb in the first person, to which we can bolt on an infinitive verb. We can use these to make accurate reference to the present, past and future. But don't be complacent, this doesn't mean you should no longer spend time learning the aforementioned conjugation patterns!

Refer to the past

tuve la suerte de (I was fortunate to) solía (I used to) decidí (I decided) de joven quería (as a child I wanted to) quise (I wanted)
tenía planeado (I planned on) iba a (I was going to) tenía ganas de (I felt like) soñaba con (I dreamt of) acabo de (I just)

Refer to the present

tengo la suerte de (I'm fortunate to) suelo (I usually) me gusta (I like) pienso en (I'm thinking of) espero (I hope)
quiero (I want) se puede (you can) trato de (I try to) puedo (I can) debo (I must) tengo que (I have to) acabo de (I just)
tengo ganas de (I feel like)

Refer to the future

tengo planeado (I plan on) me gustaría (I would like) sueño con (I dream of) pienso en (I'm thinking of)
espero (I hope)
quiero (I want)
deseo (I wish) tengo la intención de (I intend on) voy a (I'm going to)
voy a dejar de/comenzar a (I'm going to stop/start to)

Exercise 36: Write one sentence describing your past ideals, your present plans and your future wishes.

Past ideals →

Present plans →

Future wishes →

Morphology: morphological families.

Words which share a common root word belong to the same morphological family. The English word flower is related to florist, flourish, flourishing, flowered etc. The same happens in Spanish with una flor, florecer, florista, floreciendo etc. Use a dictionary to find words in the same morphological family as deporte.

deporte

Formation of adverbs

What are adverbs?

In this section we will focus on Spanish adverbs ending with -mente which correspond to the -ly suffix in English. In particular we will focus on adverbs which describe the manner in which an action is performed. We will be combining verbs with adverbs!

We're going to learn how to form -mente adverbs and then how to use them in comparative and superlative structures. There are parallels here to the section you've already completed on adjectives.

To form a -mente adverb, in most cases, you take the feminine singular form of an adjective and bolt -mente onto the end.

-mente adverbs and examples.

rápida + mente → rápidamente
lenta + mente → lentamente sincera + mente → sinceramente

Notice how in the first example the accent in "rápida" is kept in the adverbial form. This applies to other adjectives which also contain accents.

Bueno and bien, this is important!

Let's get this straight. "Bueno" and its various forms is an adjective and means "good". The word "bien" is the adverb form of "bueno" and means "well". On a side note, "malo" the adjective changes to "mal" as an adverb.

Let's practise below with adverbs of manner.

Exercise 37: Change the adjectives below into their feminine form, then add the -mente suffix and finally combine with the specified verb in the specified tense. The first one is done for you.

	feminine form	adverbial form	combined with a verb
1. contento	contenta	contentamente	he sings (cantar) canta contentamente
2. *bueno			she spoke (hablar)
3. tranquilo			we will live (vivir)
4. rápido			he wrote (escribir)
5. *malo			we played (jugar)

Morphology: adverbs of place

We have just looked at adverbs of manner but there are also adverbs of time which are essentially time phrases and adverbs of place which provide information about the location of an action.

Exercise 3: Translate these common adverbs of place from Spanish into English.

aquí → cerca → arriba →
allí → lejos → abajo →

Comparative and superlative adverbs.

Do you remember what a comparative and superlative structure is from the adjectives section of this workbook? We are going to replicate that same structure but with verbs instead of nouns. Remember the irregular forms "mejor" and "peor" from "bueno" and "malo".

Comparative adverbs.

Subject + verb + más (more) / menos (less) + adverb + que (than) + subject.

Subject + verb + tan (as) + adverb + como (as) + subject.

El lee más rápido que ella. → He reads more quickly than her.

Yo como más rápido que él. → I eat more quicker than him.

Superlative adverbs.

A superlative adverb is used to describe something which is done in the most/least superior or inferior way. These structures look quite similar to the comparative structures above with the omission of the second subject. Let's look at a simple pattern we can replicate:

Es la que (she) + verb + más (the most)/menos (the least) + adverb

Es la que (he) + verb + más (the most)/menos (the least) + adverb

Es el chico que (the boy that) + verb + más (the most)/menos (the least) + adverb

Es la chica que (the girl that) + verb + más (the most)/menos (the least) + adverb

Mi hermana es la que corre más rápido. → My sister runs the quickest.

Es la chica que participa menos. → She's the girl who participates least.

Exercise 38: Work through the translations starting from Spanish to English and then from English into Spanish. Refer to the box above for the formation of comparative and superlative adverbs.

1. Mi amigo Callum juega al ajedrez mejor que Dylan.
2. En nuestro colegio Cristina es la que corre más veloz.
3. En el restaurante la paella es el plato que vende más.
4. Se dice que los andaluces son los que hablan más rápido.
5. En el equipo de netball Marta es la que chuta más preciso.
6. In the classrom (el aula) Ernie is the one who speaks the loudest (alto).
7. In the staffroom (la sala de profesores) Jack is the one who plays (jugar) table tennis the worst.

Common adverbial phrases

What is an adverbial phrase?

Although adverbs ending with -mente are used in Spanish, it's just as common, if not more so, to hear an adverbial phrase. An adverbial phrase is another way to describe how the action of a verb is performed in terms of time, place and manner and they are typically formed by a preposition + a noun/adjective or adverb. I will admit that it's rare for a GCSE student to use one of these so including one would be definitely set you apart! Now, given that there are so many adverbial phrases, it's most useful to you, reader, that we look at some which you may be able to use during the GCSE course. Below is a list of adverbial phrases with their English translations.

Describing manner.

a pie	→	on foot
a regañadientes	→	begrudgingly
a solas	→	alone
a toda prisa	→	in a rush
con entusiasmo	→	on foot
con interés	→	with interest
de golpe	→	suddenly
de repente	→	suddenly
de verdad	→	truthfully
en broma	→	jokingly
en seguida	→	immediately
en serio	→	seriously`

Exercise 39: Translate the sentences including the present tense and an adverbial phrase.

1. Yo hago los deberes a regañadientes.
2. Mi madre cocina con entusiasmo.
3. El profesor entra de repente.
4. Mi hermano mayor sale en seguida.
5. El hombre conduce a toda prisa.
6. Su tío pregunta por su día con interés.

Describing time or place.

a diario	→	daily
a menudo	→	often
a tiempo	→	on time
a veces	→	sometimes
al fin y al cabo	→	in the end
de día	→	during the day
de noche	→	at night
de inmediato	→	immediately
al final	→	at the end
por todos lados	→	everywhere
de cerca	→	up close
de lejos	→	from afar
por delante	→	in front of
por detrás	→	from behind

Exercise 40: Translate the sentences including the present tense and an adverbial phrase.

1. Yo hago natación a diario con mi amigo.
2. Hay una iglesia bonita al final de la calle.
3. Hay niños hispanohablantes por todos lados.
4. Me gusta descansar de día y de noche trabajo.
5. Al fin y al cabo fuimos al polideportivo.
6. La mujer habla en serio.
7. De día mi padre trabaja en una oficina.

The imperfect tense

Imperfect tense conjugations.

The imperfect tense is used to describe:

1. A habitual action in the past (used to).
2. An ongoing event in the past (was).
3. An incomplete event in the past.

To form the imperfect tense remove the ending from the infinitive verb and add the endings below to the resulting stem.

Verbs ending with -ar.

yo	→	-aba
tú	→	-abas
él/ella/usted	→	-aba
nosotros	→	-ábamos
vosotros	→	-abais
ellos/ellas	→	-aban

Verbs ending with -er and -ir.

yo	→	-ía
tú	→	-ías
él/ella/usted	→	-ía
nosotros	→	-íamos
vosotros	→	-íais
ellos/ellas	→	-ían

Exercise 41: Conjugate the verbs into the imperfect using the table for support. Irregular verbs are marked with an asterisk.

1. If hacer means to do then I used to do is:
hacía
2. If jugar means to play then we used to play is:
3. If tener means to have then I used to have is:
4. If leer means to read then I was reading is:
5. If estudiar means to study then I was studying is:
6. If chatear means to chat then we used to chat is:
7. If ir means to go then I used to go is:
8. If escuchar means to listen then I was listening is:
9. If ser means to be then I was is:
10. If ir means to go then we used to go is:
11. If trabajar means to work then I used to work is:

Imperfect tense irregulars.

There are only three irregular verbs in the imperfect tense. The two most common of which are very high-frequency verbs which ideally you'll learn. They are conjugated, in full, on the right.

Ser (to be)

era	→	I was eras	→	you were era	→	he/she was éramos	→	we were erais	→	you all were
eran	→	they were

Ir (to go)

iba	→	I used to go
ibas	→	you used to go
iba	→	he/she used to go íbamos	→	we used to go
ibais	→	you all used to go
iban	→	they used to go

Morphology: the mal- prefix.

Mal- is a prefix which if placed before a root word refers to doing something badly or an undesirable trait. For example, the verb malgastar (to waste) comes from "mal" (bad) and "gastar" (to spend).

Spanish word	English meaning	Spanish word	English meaning
malcomer	to eat badly	malsano	→
maltratar	→	maleducado	→
malvivir	→	malhumorado	→

Learning these prefixes will massively increase your range of vocabulary.

Imperfect tense time phrases.

It's useful to have a bank of time phrases handy to trigger our usage of the imperfect tense. You don't need to remember all of these but it would be wise to learn a couple so that you can be sure you're using the tense correctly. Note: some sentences in English which contain the word "would" will be imperfect despite looking like they're in the conditional tense.

Time phrases:

antes	→	before
en el pasado	→	in the past
cuando era niño/a	→	when I was a child
siempre	→	always
a menudo	→	often
a veces	→	sometimes
nunca	→	never
casi nunca	→	almost never
de vez en cuando	→	from time to time

Exercise 42: Are the following verb/verb phrases imperfect (I) or preterite (P).

- | | | |
|---|---|--|
| <input type="radio"/> tenía una mascota | <input type="radio"/> hice deporte | <input type="radio"/> montaba en bicicleta |
| <input type="radio"/> leí libros | <input type="radio"/> fui tímido/a | <input type="radio"/> gasté dinero |
| <input type="radio"/> jugaba al fútbol | <input type="radio"/> era hablador/a | <input type="radio"/> conocí a una amiga |
| <input type="radio"/> fui al cine | <input type="radio"/> fui a España | <input type="radio"/> iba al gimnasio |
| <input type="radio"/> estudié mucho | <input type="radio"/> aprendí un idioma | <input type="radio"/> llevaba uniforme |
| <input type="radio"/> jugaba al rugby | <input type="radio"/> comía comida casera | <input type="radio"/> fui a una fiesta |
| <input type="radio"/> hacía natación | <input type="radio"/> jugué a los videojuegos | <input type="radio"/> trabajaba |
| <input type="radio"/> bebí té | <input type="radio"/> fui de vacaciones | <input type="radio"/> fui a un museo |
| <input type="radio"/> tenía un Gameboy | <input type="radio"/> iba a ver a mis abuelos | <input type="radio"/> usaba las redes sociales |
| <input type="radio"/> veía Pokémon | <input type="radio"/> dibujaba | <input type="radio"/> tomé un café |

Imperfect tense weather expressions with "hacer" and "estar".

Another use of the imperfect tense is to describe the weather in the past.

Weather phrases with "hacer".

hacía calor	→	it was hot
hacía frío	→	it was cold
hacía sol	→	it was sunny
hacía fresco	→	it was cool
hacía viento	→	it was windy

Weather phrases with "estar".

estaba lloviendo	→	it was raining
estaba soleado	→	it was sunny
estaba despejado	→	it was clear estaba nevando	→	it was snowing
estaba tormentoso	→	it was stormy

State how long something had been going on using "hacía".

Use the following structure to state how long something had been happening in the past.

hacía + length of time + que + imperfect tense verb.

Hacía un mes que trabajaba allí. → I had been working there for one month.

Hacía diez años que la veía → Ten years had passed since he had seen her.

Exercise 43: Work through the translations, containing the imperfect tense and time expressions, starting from Spanish to English and then from English into Spanish.

1. En el pasado siempre paseaba al perro con mi padre en el parque.
2. Cuando era niño no leía mucho pero jugaba al fútbol todo el tiempo.
3. En los años 90 mis hermanas siempre escuchaban a N-Sync y Destiny's Child.
4. Cuando era niño tenía un perro llamado Millie.
5. En el pasado andaba en monopatín con mis amigos en Harrow.
6. Cuando era niño siempre quería un tatuaje y muchos piercings.
7. Antes, mi amigo Musa y yo, jugábamos al fútbol todos los días durante horas en la calle.
8. Siempre íbamos de vacaciones a Chichester en agosto, me encantaba ir a la playa.
9. I always used to listen to (escuchar a) rock music.
10. My mum never bought (comprar) ketchup when we were (ser) kids.
11. I always used to go to (ir a) my friend Aaron's house and we would play Pokémon Yellow.
12. My best friend James used to do martial arts (hacer artes marciales).
13. When I was young I would always ride my bike (montar en bicicleta).
14. When I was a child I would never have sleepovers (tener una fiesta de pijama).
15. My dad would always buy a takeaway (comprar comida rápida) on a Friday after school.

A very ambitious structure.

Let's be clear, we're being very ambitious by including this grammar point in a GCSE grammar booklet. This structure is more apt for the A-Level so I recommended getting a cup of tea ready as this section is, let's say, challenging. I have never read or heard a GCSE student using this structure as of July 21st 2023. Teachers, please send me proof of its subsequent use and I will amend this section to include your school name for eternity (I count myself in this competition too!).

The imperfect and preterite together.

When an action in the past is interrupted by another action we need to use the imperfect and then the preterite. In English the key words to note are was (imperfect), while/whilst (mientras) and when (cuando). As in:

1. I was walking the dog when I saw my friend.
2. I was teaching Spanish when a bee came in through the window.
3. When the bee entered the class Mr Walsh was teaching Spanish.

The verbs above preceded by was will be in the imperfect tense and the verbs preceded by when will be in the preterite tense. If you're not too confident with the preterite or imperfect then I suggest reviewing one or both of them now. Otherwise, here are some examples in Spanish.

1. Paseaba al perro cuando vi a mi amigo.
2. Enseñaba el español cuando entró una avispa por la ventana.
3. Entró una avispa por la ventana mientras Mr Walsh enseñaba el español.

A set phrase with the same structure.

If you would like to use the structure above and save some working memory then you can use the set phrase below although this doesn't count towards the competition above!

Iba a + infinitive verb pero decidí + infinitive verb → I was going to verb, but I decided to verb.

Exercise 44: Work through the translations starting from Spanish to English and then from English into Spanish. Take your time and refer back to the pages on the imperfect and preterite tenses for support.

1. Jugaba al fútbol en el parque cuando llegó mi amigo Miguel.
I was playing football when my friend Miguel arrived.
2. Mientras estudiaba en mi habitación, sonó el teléfono.
3. I was preparing dinner (preparar la cena) when I burnt (quemar) the chips.
4. I was riding my bike (montar en bicicleta) when I remembered (recordar) the song.
5. The child was playing with a balloon (jugar con un globo) when it popped (explotar).
6. I was going to eat healthily (comer sano) but I decided to order fast food (pedir comida rápida).

The conditional tense

Regular conditional tense verbs.

The conditional tense is used to describe:

1. Future ambitions or intentions.
2. What you would/should or could do.
3. What would happen if something else were to occur (complex if structures).

To form the conditional tense bolt the below endings onto the end of an infinitive verb.

Verbs ending with -ar, -er and -ir.

yo	→	-ía
tú	→	-ías
él/ella/usted	→	-ía
nosotros	→	-íamos
vosotros	→	-íais
ellos/ellas	→	-ían

Irregular conditional tense verbs.

The stem of some verbs changes to which the endings above are added. Below is a list of the most common irregular verbs and their new stems.

infinitive		new stem
tener (to have)	→	tendr-
poder (to be able)	→	podr-
hacer (to make/do)	→	har-
saber (to know)	→	sabr-
poner (to put)	→	pondr-
salir (to leave)	→	saldr-
decir (to say)	→	dir-
querer (to want)	→	querr-
venir (to come)	→	vendr-

Exercise 45: Conjugate the verbs into the conditional tense using the table for support. Irregular verbs are marked with an asterisk.

1. If ir means to go then I would go is:
iría
2. If visitar means to visit then I would visit is:
3. If hacer means to do then I would do is:
4. If comer means to eat then I would eat is:
5. If comprar means to buy then I would buy is:
6. If vivir means to live then I would live is:
7. If estudiar means to study then I would study is:
8. If hacer means to make then I would make is:
9. If leer means to read then I would read is:
10. If decir means to say then I would say is:
11. If salir means to go out then I would go out is

The humble "me gustaría" structure.

This little structure deserves its own box because it's such an easy way to include the conditional tense in your writing. All you need to do is attach an infinitive verb.

Me gustaría + infinitive. → I would like to + infinitive.

Morphology: the bien- and ben- prefixes.

If the mal- prefix refers to doing something badly then the -ben and bien- prefixes are the opposite and have positive connotations. Find the meanings for the following words which all contain -bien or -ben.

Spanish word		English meaning	Spanish word		English meaning
bendecir	→	to bless	bienhablado	→
beneficiar	→	bienvenido	→
bienoliente	→	bienamado	→

Do you remember what the difference between bien and bueno is?

Conditional tense expressions.

Here's a box of expressions you can use to fire off the conditional. These are important as combining them with a conditional tense verb will provide additional detail, remove any potential ambiguity and show your breadth of vocabulary. All things which will help you towards the achieving highly in your GCSE.

Expressions

en el futuro	→	in the future
cuando sea mayor	→	when I'm older si me preguntas	→	if you ask me
si pudiera	→	if I could ojalá pudiera	→	I wish I could
si fuera posible	→	if it were possible

Complex 'if structures' with the imperfect subjunctive.

The following are sophisticated structures which can be used across a variety of GCSE topics. They are great for referring to the future in a speculative way and are very complex due to containing what is called the imperfect subjunctive.

Si pudiera, me gustaría + infinitive.	→	If I could, I would like to + infinitive verb.
Si me tocara la lotería + conditional .	→	If I won the lottery + conditional tense verb.
Ojalá pudiera + infinitive.	→	I wish I could + infinitive verb.
Si tuviera la oportunidad + conditional.	→	If I had the chance + conditional tense verb.

Exercise 46: Tick 15 things you would do if you won the lottery.

The present perfect tense

Present perfect conjugations.

The present perfect is a compound tense because it is formed by two parts. Because of this it is considered quite complex.

The first part of the present perfect is the auxiliary verb and the second part is formed by the past participle. Below we will go through how to form each one of these.

Use the present perfect tense to:

1. Describe unfinished actions which started in the past and affect the present.
2. Describe when you have or have not done something.

Example sentences.

I have eaten today – he comido hoy.

↑ ↑ ↑ ↑
av pp av pp

He has made dinner – ha preparado la cena.

↑ ↑ ↑ ↑
av pp av pp

She has worked today → ha trabajado hoy.

↑ ↑ ↑ ↑
av pp av pp

Part 1: The auxiliary verb.

I have	→	he
you have	→	has
he/she/it has	→	he
we have	→	hemos
you all have	→	habéis
they have	→	han

Part 2: The past participle.

For verbs ending with -ar remove the ending and replace with -ado.

hablar (to talk) → hablado (spoken) pasar (to spend) → pasado (spent)

For verbs ending with -er and -ir remove the ending and replace with -ido.

vivir (to live) → vivido (lived)

comer (to eat) → comido (eaten)

Exercise 47: Conjugate the verbs into the present perfect tense.

1. If comer means to eat then I have eaten is:
he comido
2. If beber means to drink then you have drunk is:
3. If tener means to have then she has had is:
4. If trabajar means to work then we have worked is:
5. If repassar means to revise then I have revised is:
6. If recoger means to pick up then I've picked up is:
7. If correr means to run then they have run is:
8. If terminar means to finish then I have finished is:
9. If salir means to leave then you all have left is:
10. If ganar means to earn then I have earned is:
11. If pensar means to think then I have thought is:
12. If escuchar means to listen then I have listened is:
13. If viajar means to travel then she has travelled is:
14. If gritar means to shout then he has shouted is:
15. If votar means to vote then we have voted is:

Morphology: adjectives ending with -ed.

Some Spanish past participles can also be used as adjectives when preceded by a form of estar (to be) decepcionar (to disappoint) →	estoy decepcionado cerrar (to close) → jubilarse (to retire) → frustrar (to frustrate) →

Irregular past participles.

Of course not all past participles end with -ado and -ido just like they don't all end with -ed in English. On the right you'll find a list of the most common irregular past participles besides their infinitives.

hacer	→	hecho	ver	→	visto
escribir	→	escrito	cubrir	→	cubierto
poner	→	puesto	morir	→	muerto
decir	→	dicho	romper	→	roto
volver	→	vuelto	leer	→	leído
abrir	→	abierto	resolver	→	resuelto

Present perfect time phrases.

As I'm sure you're used to by now it's important that we trigger our usage of the present perfect tense with an appropriate time phrase. On the right you'll find a list of handy time phrases to complement your present perfect verbs.

Time phrases:

hoy	→	today
esta semana	→	this week
este mes	→	this month
este año	→	this year
recientemente	→	recently
últimamente	→	lately
ya	→	already

Exercise 48: Tick the activities that you've done today.

| <input type="radio"/> he hecho algo divertido | <input type="radio"/> he visto una película | <input type="radio"/> he probado un plato español |

Exercise 49: Translate the sentences below containing the present perfect and time phrases from English into Spanish.

1. Today I have already read a book (leer un libro) and studied art (estudiar el dibujo).
2. This week I have tried (probar) gazpacho, visited (visitar) landmarks and spoken (hablar) Spanish.
3. Recently I have studied lots (estudiar) and I've done (hacer) my homework.

Relative pronouns "que" and "quien"

What are relative pronouns?

In this section we will focus on the two most common types of relative pronouns which are "que" (that, which, who or whom) and "quien/es" (who/whom). Relative pronouns feature in the Foundation and Higher sections of the course grammar list so, knowledge of how these work is important.

In essence, relative pronouns are functional words which connect sentences or clauses (subordinate and main clauses) and are used to refer back to something which was previously mentioned. Consider the examples below in which two sentences have been condensed into one with a relative pronoun.

Ayer compré un café. El café costó €3,00. → El café que compré ayer costó €3,00.
relative pronoun (that)

Voy a ver a mi amigo. Él trabaja en londres. → Voy a ver a mi amigo quien trabaja en londres.
relative pronoun (who)

Quien/es or que?

If you are referring to a person or various people you can use either "que" or "quien" but if you're referring to various people then "quien" changes to "quienes".

Exercise 50: Combine the two sentences below into one using a relative pronoun like "que", "quien" or if appropriate "quienes".

1. Ayer compré un móvil. El móvil es muy caro. →
2. Mi hermana va a visitar. Ella vive en otra ciudad. →
3. La serie Stranger Things me encanta. Es mi favorita. →
4. Mi amiga es médica. Trabaja en un hospital →

Morphology: compound words.

Some nouns in Spanish are compounds and are formed by combining two words. Translate both components below and work out what the final compound word means in English.

Word 1	Word 2	Compound word	English meaning lava wash	platos dishes lavaplatos dishwasher
pasa	tiempo
abre	latas

More relative pronouns.

Of course it wasn't going to be that simple! It would be lovely if there were just two relative pronouns but there are in fact a lot more. We're going to focus now on a few advanced relative pronouns. The first of which, "lo que", features on the Higher section of the grammar list. Foundation tier candidates are expected to have a receptive knowledge of this.

When to use "lo que".

"Lo que" is a neuter relative pronoun (it's neither masculine or feminine) and can be used more abstractly to introduce situations, concepts or ideas. Have a look at the examples below where "lo que" can simply mean "what". Keep in mind that you can also translate "lo que" as "which".

Lo que me preocupa más es la contaminación. → What worries me most is pollution.

Lo que me dijiste ayer me ha chocado mucho. → What you told me yesterday shocked me.

Exercise 51: Translate the sentences below which all contain the relative pronoun "lo que".

1. Me interesa mucho lo que dices.
2. Oliver suspendió el examen, lo que frustró a su madre.
3. A los clientes lo que les gusta es que los ingredientes sean locales.

Whose?

Along the same lines as "what" and "which" is the word "whose". Although, technically speaking the word for "whose", which is "cuyo" in Spanish, is a relative adjective and not a relative pronoun.

So, being an adjective, this means there are several forms it can take. If "cuyo" is the masculine singular form then it can also become "cuya" (feminine singular) and "cuyos/as" (masculine or feminine plural).

Unlike "que" or "quien", "cuyo" always agrees with the noun it's modifying and not the previously mentioned thing (the antecedent) as is the case for relative pronouns like "quien".

Examples:

La mujer, cuyo hijo estudia en el colegio, es la directora.
(The woman, whose son studies in the school, is the headteacher).

El hombre, cuyo coche es blanco, es mi vecino.
(The man, whose car is white, is my neighbour).

Luisa, cuyo don es ser fuertísima, es la hermana de Mirabelle.
(Luisa, whose gift is being super strong, is Mirabelle's sister).

Relative pronoun "el que"

More relative pronouns?

If it helps you to better understand the role relative pronouns undertake you could think of "relative" as meaning that they "relate" to previously mentioned nouns. The subject specific term for this previously mentioned noun is "the antecedent".

In the last section we learnt that relative pronouns link a subordinate clause to a main clause. It's pertinent to remember that a subordinate clause cannot make sense by itself and needs a main clause, that which it refers back to, in order for the meaning of the sentence to be complete. "Que" and "quien/es" are two very widely used relative pronouns but we're now going to learn a new one which can also be used to refer to people and things and which can be translated as "the one, ones that" or "who".

masculine	el que	los que
feminine	la que	las que

An alternative form of this relative pronoun replaces the "que" with "cual" in the singular and "cuales" in the plural but it's considered more formal and is used less often.

"El que" in action with an antecedent.

Do you remember what an antecedent is? I'll keep typing away whilst you try and remember. Go and re-read the top paragraph once more. Yes, an antecedent is the subject specific term for the previously mentioned noun in a sentence which a relative pronoun links back to. Let's have a look at some examples where the relative pronoun "el que" (and its various forms) provide more detail about an antecedent.

La casa en Granada es la que me gusta más. → The house in Granada is the one I like most.
relative pronoun

Mi amigo, el que es de Bilbao, llegará pronto. → My friend, the one from Bilbao, will arrive soon.
relative pronoun

Exercise 52: Unscramble the Spanish words on the right to correctly translate the sentence in English on the left. Write your answers underneath the English. The first one has been done for you.

- The black cat is the one I like. → negro / gato / me/ gusta / El / es / el / que El gato negro es el que me gusta.
- Harry is the one who sings best. → canta / mejor / es / Harry / el / que
- Andy is the one who worked hardest. → Andy / el / duro / trabajó / es / más / que
- My youngest daughter is the one I prefer. → menor/ Mi/ hija / prefiero / que / la / es

Common prepositions

What are prepositions?

Prepositions are essential linguistic elements that establish the relationship between different words in a sentence. In both English and Spanish, prepositions act as connecting words and help convey spatial (location), temporal (time), and logical relationships. They indicate the position, direction, or timing of an action or event.

Common preposition 1: "a" meaning "to/at"

The preposition "a" has a wide range of uses in Spanish, from indicating movement or direction to marking indirect objects and expressing time. When "a" is followed by the definite article "el" both words abbreviate to "al" as in the case in example sentence two below.

Vamos a las tiendas.	→	We're going to the shops (direction).
Voy al cine esta noche.	→	I'm going to the cinema tonight (direction).
El tren sale a las 8 de la mañana.	→	The train leaves at 8 in the morning (time).

Common preposition 2: "en" meaning "on/in/by"

The preposition "en" is widely used in Spanish to indicate location, time, manner, and means, making it an important word to learn and use accurately in various contexts.

Estoy en el parque.	→	I'm in the park (location).
Vamos en coche.	→	We're going by car (means).
Vamos a salir en diez minutos.	→	We're going to leave in ten minute (time).

Common preposition 3: "con" meaning "with"

The preposition "con" is frequently used in Spanish to indicate association, accompaniment, means, or to express the idea of "with" when referring to people or things.

Hablo con mi amigo.	→	I'm talking with my friend (with).
Quiero los churros con chocolate.	→	I want the churros with chocolate (accompaniment).
Hablas conmigo .	→	You talk with me (with).

Disjunctive pronouns

Did you notice that in the last example above "con" merged with "mi" to produce "conmigo" (with me)? These are called disjunctive pronouns and they're quite common.

Conmigo → With me.	Con nosotros/as → With us.
Contigo → With you.	Con vosotros/as → With you all.
Consigo → With him or her.	Con ellos/ellas → With them.

Common preposition 4: "de" meaning "of"

The preposition "de" is one of the most versatile and commonly used prepositions in Spanish. It can be used to denote origin, possession, material, contents, cause, relation and lots more.

El anillo es de oro.	→	The ring is made of gold (material)
Es la casa de los Madrigal.	→	It's the Madrigal's house (possession).
La camisa es de Zara.	→	The shirt is from Zara (origin).

Common preposition 5: "sobre" meaning "on (top of)/over/about"

The preposition "sobre" is widely used in a wide range of contexts to express different meanings including describing positions and typically when "about" would be used in English.

El gato está sobre la cama.	→	The cat is on the bed (on).
No podemos hablar sobre Bruno.	→	We can't talk about Bruno (about).
La casa está sobre la colina.	→	The house is on top of the hill (on top of).

Common preposition 6: "sin" meaning "without"

The preposition "sin" is crucial in Spanish to express the absence of something and is commonly used in everyday speech and writing.

Hector no puede sobrevivir sin Miguel.	→	Hector can't survive without Miguel.
Lo hicimos sin problems.	→	We did it without any problems.
Salieron de la casa sin permiso	→	They left the house without permission.

Common preposition 8: "desde and hasta" meaning "since/from and until"

Learning the correct usage of "desde" is essential for expressing time frames, origin/source, and causes in Spanish. It's commonly used with the word "hasta" which means "until".

Caminamos desde la playa hasta el hotel.	→	We walked from the beach to the hotel.
He sabido desde el lunes.	→	I've known since Monday (time frame).
El paquete llegó desde España.	→	The parcel arrived from Spain (source/origin).

Common preposition 7: "entre" meaning "between/among"

The preposition "entre" is used to express the idea of being in the middle of something, either physically, temporally (time), or conceptually.

El café está entre las dos tiendas	→	The coffee shop is between the two shops (between).
Llegaré entre las 2 y las 3 de la tarde.	→	I'll arrive between 2pm and 3pm (between).
Entre los arboles hay un columpio.	→	Among the trees there's a swing (among).

Exercise 53: Translate the sentences which all contain a common preposition from English into Spanish. The target preposition is given at the end of each sentence in bold.

1. The girls talk about football. (sobre)
2. My friends walk in the park. (en)
3. Tomorrow me and my friends are going to Valencia. (a)
4. I left (salir) the house without my coat (abrigo). (sin).
5. Are you (estar) with your friend? (con)
6. The t-shirt is cotton (algodón). (de)
7. Later on I'm going to the bakery. Are you coming (venir) with me? (a/con)
8. The group talk (hablar) about politics. (sobre)
9. We're walking (caminar) from the beach to the museum. (desde/hasta)
10. They didn't arrive (llegar) until 2am. (hasta)
11. At ten in the morning I always drink a coffee. (a)
12. On top of the table there is a book. (sobre)
13. You cannot leave (poder/salir) the hotel without permission. (sin)
14. My car is (estar) between the Seat and the VW. (entre)
15. We are travelling (viajar) by plane. (en)
16. It's (ser) Lidia's pencil case (el estuche). (de)
17. Do you want (querer) chips with the burger? (con)
18. These oranges are from Seville! (de)
19. I have been learning Spanish since last year. (desde)

The pluperfect tense

Pluperfect conjugations.

The pluperfect is a compound tense because it is formed by two parts. It's rare for this tense to be used at GCSE level so the challenge is there to use it if you can!

The pluperfect is a little similar to the present perfect in that the first part is the auxiliary verb and the second part is formed by the past participle. The pluperfect can be used to discriminate between two actions in the past, clarifying which one happened first. For that reason it generally appears in a sentence with a verb in the preterite tense. Such as in the examples below.

Example sentences.

I had eaten when they arrived.
 pluperfect preterite

They had messaged before they met.
↑ ↑
 pluperfect preterite

Part 1: The auxiliary verb.

I had	→	había
you had	→	habías
he/she/it had	→	había
we had	→	habíamos
you all had	→	habíais
they had	→	habían

Part 2: The past participle.

For verbs ending with -ar remove the ending and replace with -ado.

bailar (to dance)	→	bailado (danced)
olvidar (to forget)	→	olvidado (forgotten)

For verbs ending with -er and -ir remove the ending and replace with -ido.

vivir (to live)	→	vivido (lived)
comer (to eat)	→	comido (eaten)

Add the two parts above together to form your pluperfect tense verb.

Exercise 54: Conjugate the verbs into the pluperfect tense.

- If comer means to eat then I had eaten is: había comido
- If estar means to be then you had been is:
- If dar means to give then she had given is:
- If escribir means to write then we had written is:
- If querer means to want then I had wanted is:
- If decir means to say then I had said is:
- If cantar means to sing then they had sung is:
- If volver means to return then I had returned is:
- If estudiar means to study then I had studied is:
- If saber means to know then they had known is:
- If pensar means to think then I had thought is:
- If oír means to hear then we had heard is:
- If hacer means to made then she had made is:
- If comprar means to buy then he had bought is:
- If tener means to have then we had had is:

Morphology: the sobre- prefix

The sobre- prefix, in most cases, changes the meaning of a word to either over or above.

valorado (valued)	→	sobrevalorado (overrated)
dosis (dosis)	→
peso (weight)	→
pescar (to fish)	→

Irregular past participles.

This is a reminder that not all past participles end with -ado and -ido. On the right, once again, you will find a list of the most common irregular past participles in Spanish besides their infinitive verbs.

hacer	→	hecho	ver	→	visto
escribir	→	escrito	cubrir	→	cubierto
poner	→	puesto	morir	→	muerto
decir	→	dicho	romper	→	roto
volver	→	vuelto	leer	→	leído
abrir	→	abierto	resolver	→	resuelto

Pluperfect time phrases.

We should trigger our usage of the pluperfect tense with an appropriate time phrase. In doing so we'll write less-ambiguously and provide additional detail. On the right you'll find a list of handy time phrases to use.

Time phrases:

hasta entonces	→	until then
nunca	→	never
siempre	→	always
ya	→	already
antes	→	before

Exercise 55: Translate the sentences below from English into Spanish.

1. Until then I hadn't seen (ver) a wild boar (un jabalí).
2. I had never wanted to go (ir) to France.
3. I had always eaten (comer) paella but I decided (decidir) to try (probar) tortilla.
4. You had already seen (ver) the film.
5. He had already read (leer) the book that she bought (comprar).
6. The cat had never slept (dormir) in the house.
7. Until then we had never spoken (hablar).
8. Had you always been (ser) so witty (ingenioso)?
9. They hadn't even spoken (hablar) when the pandemic started (comenzar la pandemia).
10. The parents had never wanted to buy (comprar) fast food.
11. The bird had already caught (coger) the worm (gusano).
12. Until then she had never visited (visitar) the city but decided to explore (explorar).
13. We had already heard (oír) the news when Jorge screamed (chillar).

The present continuous tense

Present continuous conjugations.

Use the present continuous tense to:

1. Express a current action in progress.
2. Describe an unfinished action.

The present continuous is a compound tense because it is formed of two parts. Because of this it is considered quite complex.

The first part is the auxiliary verb “estar” (to be) and the second part is formed by the gerund. A gerund, in English, is the form of a verb ending with -ing.

Example sentences.

I am drinking tea – estoy bebiendo té.

↑ ↑ ↑ ↑
av g av g

He is winning – está ganando.

↑ ↑ ↑ ↑
av g av g

Part 1: The auxiliary verb.

estoy	→	I am
estás	→	you are
está	→	he or she is estamos	→	we are estáis	→	you all are
están	→	they are

Part 2: The gerund.

For verbs ending with -ar remove the ending and replace with -ando.

pensar (to think) → pensando (thinking)

estudiar (to study) → estudiando (studying)

For verbs ending with -er and -ir remove the ending and replace with -iendo.

ocurrir (to happen) → ocurriendo (happening)

subir (to upload) → subiendo (uploading)

To accurately form this tense we add the first and second parts so “estoy subiendo” would be “I am uploading”. Let's now practise on the right. Refer back to this box if you need to.

Exercise 56: Conjugate the verbs into the present continuous tense.

1. If pagar means to pay then I am paying is:
estoy pagando
2. If enseñar means to teach then he is teaching is:
3. If rogar means to pray then she is praying is:
4. If tocar means to play then they are playing is:
5. If ganar means to win then we are winning is:
6. If decir means to say then they're saying is:
7. If ayudar means to help then I'm helping is:
8. If usar means to use then he is using is:
9. If esquiar means to ski then we are skiing is:
10. If aclarar means to clarify then she's clarifying is:
11. If buscar means to look for then I'm looking for is:
12. If cubrir means to cover then they are covering is:
13. If llegar means to arrive then you all are arriving is:
14. If mirar means to watch then he is watching is:
15. If poner means to place then we are placing is:

Morphology: irregular gerunds.

Spanish verbs ending with -er and -ir with a vowel before the ending are irregular and go to -yendo.

leer (to read)	→	leyendo oir (to hear)	→
huir (to escape)	→
creer (to believe)	→

Present continuous time phrases.

For the last time, but it's worth reiterating, it's important that we trigger our usage of the present continuous tense with an appropriate time phrase. On the right you'll find a list of handy time phrases to use. The jury is out on "aún" and "todavía". Both are synonyms and can be used interchangeably.

Time phrases:

actualmente	→	currently
ahora	→	now
ya	→	already todavía	→	still aún	→	still
en este momento	→	at the moment
ahora mismo	→	right now

English gerunds and Spanish infinitives.

Consider the sentences below in English in which a gerund (a verb ending with -ing) is used. What do you notice about the Spanish translations?

Reading is my favourite hobby.	→	Leer es mi pasatiempo favorito.
I love drawing.	→	Me encanta dibujar.
My dad says smoking is bad.	→	Mi padre dice que fumar es malo.

Hopefully you've noticed that where in English we used a gerund (an -ing verb) in Spanish an infinitive verb was used. So, what's the takeaway? In the context of your GCSE you will be able to use the present continuous to describe what is happening in a photo but if you want to make more general statements about hobbies or actions then you may be able to just use an infinitive.

Exercise 57: Complete the translations starting from Spanish to English and then English into Spanish. Take your time and refer back to the pages that contain the part 1 and 2 explanations if you need.

1. Quiero ir a Bristol pero mi mejor amigo está visitando a sus abuelos.
2. Estoy pensando en ir de vacaciones a España.
3. Estamos trabajando en algo muy importante.
4. What are you doing (hacer)?
5. I'm listening to music whilst my brother is walking the dog (pasear al perro).
6. We are cooking (elaborar) a Spanish omelette.

Llevar + duration + gerund structures

Use this complex structure to describe how long you have been doing a particular activity. This is a great way to demonstrate your knowledge of gerunds without using the present progressive.

Llevo diez años estudiando el español.	→	I've been learning Spanish for ten years.
Llevamos dos meses trabajando juntos.	→	We've been working together for two months.

Direct object pronouns

What are direct object pronouns?

In order to understand what a direct object pronoun (dop) is, it's important to consider simple sentence structure.

Simple sentences generally include a subject, a verb and an object.

The boy eats a cookie.

s v o

My friend visited her cousins.

s v o

One way to find out what or who the object is in a sentence is to ask the question who or what followed by the verb in the sentence.

1. What does the boy eat? A cookie.
2. Who did my friend visit? Her cousins.

Direct object pronouns replace nouns in sentences to facilitate communication and prevent repetition. Replace "book" in the following paragraph with "it" but be careful, you need to keep the first reference to the book so the reader knows what every subsequent 'it' is referring to. The first instance of book, or any noun to be replaced, is called the antecedent.

I bought a new book today. The book is by Ben MacIntyre and the book cost £20. .

English		Spanish
me	→	me
you	→	te
he, she or it	→	lo/la
us	→	nos
you all	→	os
them	→	los/las

Direct object pronouns are placed before conjugated verbs or attach to infinitives and gerunds. See the next page for more information about placement.

Exercise 58: Identify the object (o) for each of the following sentences.

1. Yo leo un libro.
2. Él come una manzana.
3. Ella ve la televisión.
4. Tú bebes agua.
5. Yo escribo una carta.
6. Vosotros habláis español.
7. Ellos compran ropa nueva.
8. Mi hermana lava los platos.
9. El perro persigue al gato.
10. El profesor enseña el inglés.
11. El niño juega al fútbol.
12. La niña pinta un caballo.
13. La madre compra un coche.
14. El padre escucha la música.
15. El abuelo lee el periódico.

The personal "a".

If the direct object in a sentence is a person or a pet then it is preceded by the preposition "a". This is called "the personal a". You may also use it with objects or animals that you show endearment to or assign human qualities to.

Mañana voy a ver a Helena.

Tomorrow I'm going to see Helena.

Voy a pasear a mi perro.

I'm going to walk my dog.

Placement of direct object pronouns.

Direct object pronouns tend to be placed before a conjugated verb but in some cases can attach to either a gerund or an infinitive. Do you remember what a gerund and infinitive are?

Examples of direct object pronouns before conjugated verbs.

Me encanta el fútbol, lo juego los lunes.	→	I love football, I play it on Mondays.
Me gustan la paella pero siempre la comemos.	→	I like chips but we always eat them.
Me gusta la historia, la estudiaré mañana.	→	I like history, I'll study it tomorrow.

Examples of direct object pronouns attached to infinitives.

No quiero comer las .	→	I don't want to eat them (them referring to las gambas)
Tengo que hacer lo .	→	I have to do it (it referring to a verb which always take lo).
Suelo ver los los sábados.	→	I usually see them Saturdays (them referring mis tíos).

Exercise 59: Circle the appropriate direct object pronoun for each sentence and then rewrite the sentence replacing the antecedent with a direct object pronoun. Remember correct placement!

- Yo leo un libro. me | te | lo | la | nos | os | los | las yo lo leo.
- Él come una manzana. me | te | lo | la | nos | os | los | las _____
- Ella ve la televisión. me | te | lo | la | nos | os | los | las _____
- Tú bebes agua. me | te | lo | la | nos | os | los | las _____
- Yo escribo una carta. me | te | lo | la | nos | os | los | las _____
- Vosotros habláis el español. me | te | lo | la | nos | os | los | las _____
- Ellos compran ropa nueva. me | te | lo | la | nos | os | los | las _____
- Mi hermana lava los platos. me | te | lo | la | nos | os | los | las _____
- El perro persigue al gato. me | te | lo | la | nos | os | los | las _____
- El profesor enseña el inglés. me | te | lo | la | nos | os | los | las _____
- El niño juega al fútbol. me | te | lo | la | nos | os | los | las _____
- La niña pinta un caballo. me | te | lo | la | nos | os | los | las _____
- La madre compra un coche. me | te | lo | la | nos | os | los | las _____
- El padre escucha la música. me | te | lo | la | nos | os | los | las _____

Indirect object pronouns

What are indirect object pronouns?

If asking who or what reveal the object in a sentence then to find the indirect object in a sentence you should ask the questions to whom or for whom.

Put another way, the New Reference Grammar of Modern Spanish states that an indirect object pronoun replaces any person or thing gaining or losing from the action described in a verb phrase.

English examples:

She gives the ball to the boy

To whom does she give the ball? The boy.

It's very common for a sentence to include both a direct and an indirect object. Let's consider the sentences above and annotate them below to highlight the object pronouns.

She gives the ball to the boy.
 do ido
 (the what) (to whom)

He gives the book to his sister.
 ↑ ↑
 do ido
 (the what) (to whom)

Spanish indirect object pronouns.

English		Spanish
me	→	me
you	→	te
he, she or it	→	le
us	→	nos
you all	→	os
them	→	les

Let's practise now with some example sentences where people gain or lose from the action described in a sentence.

Exercise 60: Identify the direct object (do) and indirect object (ido) in the following sentences.

1. Yo compro flores para mi madre.
2. Ella envia un mensaje a su amigo.
3. Mi padre regala un libro a mi hermano.
4. La profesora explica el concepto a los estudiantes.
5. El cliente da dinero al camarero.
6. El gato trae el ratón a su dueña.
7. Yo presto un libro a mi hermana.
8. Tú sirves el café a tus amigos.
9. Ella dice la verdad al profesor.
10. Pedro escribe un guión para Penélope
11. La niña da el juguete a su hermanito.
12. Tú traes las bebidas a los asistentes.
13. Yo escribo una carta a mi abuelo.
14. La madre prepara el desayuno para su hija.
15. El camarero sirve la bebida al cliente.

Morphology: nouns ending with -ma.

Not all nouns ending with an "a" are feminine! The -ema suffix in Spanish denotes that a noun is masculine.

el problema	→	the problem
el programa	→
el poema	→
el idioma	→

Direct and indirect object pronouns together.

This workbook contains some very ambitious structures. Each one, however, is listed on the AQA, EdExcel and WJEC specification grammar lists. The position and order of object pronouns is one of these ambitious structures. Interestingly, on each specification it's followed by the letter "R" which means only a receptive knowledge of it is expected. This essentially means you will understand it when you hear it or see it but you aren't expected to produce it yourself in writing or speech.

So, how do direct and indirect objects work together in a sentence where there is both a direct object and an indirect object.

There are some non-negotiable rules with this:

1. The indirect object pronoun always comes before the direct object pronoun.
2. When the direct object pronoun in your sentences is either "lo, la, los or las" and the indirect object pronoun you want to use is "le" you must change "le" to "se".
3. When the direct object pronoun in your sentences is either "lo, la, los or las" and the indirect object pronoun you want to use is "les" you must also change "les" to "se".

If we go back to our example from the last page we can see how the sentence changes when both objects are replaced with object pronouns.

She gives the ball to the boy. → Ella da la pelota al niño. → Ella se la da.

do ido dop
(the what) (to whom) (the what) (to whom) (the what) (to whom) (to whom)

Rules 1 and 2 are clear in the example above. In the final sentence the indirect object pronoun (idop) comes before the direct object pronoun (dop) and "se" has been used as a replacement for "le" because "la pelota" takes the "la" object pronoun.

It becomes a little easier when we aren't combining "le/les" with "lo/la/los/las". Let's have a look at another example involving somebody buying books for me.

You buy books for me. → Tú compras libros para mi. → Me los compras.

do ido dop
(the what) (to whom) (the what) (to whom) (to whom)

Exercise 61: In the texts below highlight the direct and indirect object pronouns and use the space below each to explain what nouns each object pronoun is replacing.

1. Ayer María compró un regalo para su madre. Ella se lo dio por su cumpleaños.
2. Ella dijo la verdad al profesor. Se la dijo porque es honesta.
3. La niña da el juguete a su hermano. Se lo da porque su hermano estaba llorando.
4. ¿Mañana puedes comprar un libro para mi? Me lo compras y te daré el dinero después.

The imperfect continuous tense

Imperfect continuous conjugations.

Use the imperfect continuous tense to:

1. Say what was happening or what you were doing at a certain time.
2. Describe an event in progress in the past.

The imperfect continuous is another compound tense because it is formed of two parts. The first part is the auxiliary verb "estar" (to be) and the second part is formed by the gerund. A gerund, in English, is the form of a verb ending with -ing.

Example sentences.

I was drinking tea – estaba bebiendo té.

↑ ↑ ↑ ↑
av g av g

He was winning – estaba ganando.

↑ ↑ ↑ ↑
av g av g

Part 1: The auxiliary verb.

estaba	→	I am
estabas	→	you are estaba	→	he or she is estábamos	→	we are estabais	→	you all are estaban	→	they are

Part 2: The gerund.

For verbs ending with -ar remove the ending and replace with -ando.

pensar (to think) → pensando (thinking)
estudiar (to study) → estudiando (studying)

For verbs ending with -er and -ir remove the ending and replace with -iendo.

ocurrir (to happen) → ocurriendo (happening)
subir (to upload) → subiendo (uploading)

To accurately form this tense we add the first and second parts so "estaba subiendo" would be "I was uploading". Let's now practise on the right. Refer back to this box if you need to.

Exercise 62: Conjugate the verbs into the imperfect continuous tense.

1. If aprender means to learn then I was learning is:
estaba aprendiendo
2. If enviar means to send then he was sending is:
3. If mirar means to watch then I was watching is:
4. If votar means to vote then she was voting is:
5. If temer means to fear then we were fearing is:
6. If tratar means to try then they were trying is:
7. If ver means to see then you all were seeing is:
8. If pasar means to spend then I was spending is:
9. If sufrir means to suffer then we were suffering is:
10. If elegir means to choose then I was choosing is:
11. If volar means to fly then you all were flying is:
12. If bostezar means to yawn then I was yawning is:
13. If llorar means to weep then he was weeping is:
14. If mirar means to watch then he was watching is:
15. If llamar means to call then she was calling is:

Morphology: augmentatives.

An augmentative adjective is used to add size and intensity and they typically end with -ón/ona, -azo/aza. These are the opposite of diminutives.

tazón	→	a big cup golazo	→
sillón	→
cucharón	→

Imperfect continuous time phrases.

Okay, this is definitely the last time we see more time phrases. It's important that we trigger our usage of the imperfect continuous tense with an appropriate time expression. On the right you'll find a list of handy time phrases to use. This tense is very rare at GCSE level so well done if you manage to use it!

Time phrases:

el otro día	→	currently
antes	→	before
hace + duration	→	duration + ago
entonces	→	then
en el pasado	→	in the past
en aquel momento	→	in that moment
anteriormente	→	previously

The imperfect continuous used in conjunction with the preterite.

As you read earlier on in this workbook the imperfect and preterite can be used together in the same sentence where the preterite tense verb interrupts the imperfect tense verb, usually in this sentence you'll see the word "cuando" which means "when". This rule applies again to the imperfect continuous. See the examples below.

Yo estaba conduciendo cuando llamaste. → I was driving when you called.
imperfect ↑ continuous ↑ preterite

Estaban trabajando cuando llegó el jefe. → They were working when the boss arrived.
imperfect ↑ continuous ↑ preterite

Exercise 63: Translate the sentences from English into Spanish which all contain an imperfect continuous action being interrupted by a preterite tense verb. Verb phrases are given in bold.

- I was reading a book (leer un libro) when the phone rang (sonar el teléfono).
Estaba leyendo un libro cuando sonó el teléfono.
- We were walking (caminar) through the park when it started to rain (comenzar a llover).
- You were eating (comer) when your mum arrived home (llegar a casa).
- I was studying (estudiar) when my sister interrupted (interrumpir).
- I was playing football (jugar al fútbol) when the referee (árbitro) blew the whistle (soplar el silbato).
- He was swimming in the sea (nadar en el mar) when he saw a dolphin (ver un delfín).
- They were listening to music (escuchar la música) when Isabella entered (entrar).
- I was going down the stairs (bajar las escaleras) when I fell over (caerse).

The correct usage of "ser"

To be or not to be?

In Spanish there are two different verbs for the English "to be" which are "ser" and "estar". There are strict rules for when you should use one and not the other. On this page we will focus on the verb "ser", the rules which govern its usage and how it conjugates in the present, past and future.

Present tense.

soy	→	I am
eres	→	you are
es	→	he or she is somos	→	we are sois	→	you all are son	→	they are

Preterite tense.

fui	→	I was fuiste	→	you were
fue	→	he/she was fuimos	→	we were
fuisteis	→	you all were fueron	→	they were

Future tense.

seré	→	I will be
serás	→	you will be será	→	he/she will be seremos	→	we will be seréis	→	you all will be serán	→	they will be

A helpful acronym.

Acronyms can be good aide-memoires. To remind us of when to use ser and not estar we can use the acronym DOCTOR.

D	→	Description
O	→	Occupation
C	→	Characteristic
T	→	Time/Date
O	→	Origin
R	→	Relationship

doubly irregular

If you think it's difficult learning how to use the verb "to be" in Spanish then re-read the English conjugations. It's irregular in both languages!

Exercise 64: For each sentence highlight the form of the verb ser and explain why it has been used using the DOCTOR acronym.

1. Mi madre es profesora de inglés.
Occupation.
2. Mi mejor amigo es de Colombia.
3. El libro que estoy leyendo es muy antiguo.
4. Es mi casa.
5. Yo soy abogada y trabajo en una oficina.
6. Mi padre es muy inteligente y mi madre es muy amable.
7. Hoy es martes.
8. Son las dos de la tarde.

Morphology: collective nouns.

A collective noun is a singular noun which refers to a collection of things. When a collective noun is followed by a verb the verb has to be conjugated in the 3rd person singular (he/she/it).

Spanish word	English meaning	Spanish word	English meaning
la familia	→ family	la gente	→ el grupo	→	la clase	→
el equipo	→	una serie	→

Do you know what 1st, 2nd and 3rd person mean?

The correct usage of "estar"

Present tense.

estoy	→	I am
estás	→	you are
está	→	he or she is
estamos	→	we are estáis	→	you all are
están	→	they are

Preterite tense.

estuve	→	I was estuviste	→	you were estuvo	→	he/she was estuvimos	→	we were estuvisteis	→	you all were estuvieron	→	they were

Future tense.

estaré	→	I will be estarás	→	you will be estará	→	he/she will be estaremos	→	we will be estaréis	→	you all will be estarán	→	they will be

A helpful acronym.

Acronyms can be good aide-memoires. To remind us of when to use estar and not ser we can use the acronym PLACE.

P	→	Position
L	→	Location
A	→	Action
C	→	Condition
E	→	Emotion

Also use estar to describe temporary states like in the example below or the tastes of food!

a minefield.

What would be the difference between saying "eres muy guapo" and "hoy estás muy guapo"? Would you be offended if this was said to you?

Exercise 65: For each sentence highlight the form of the verb estar and explain why it has been used using the PLACE acronym.

1. Estoy muy bien.
Emotion.
2. El té está muy caliente.
3. Mis libros están en el colegio.
4. En la foto veo un hombre que está trabajando.
5. Hoy estoy enfermo y no voy a ir al colegio.
6. Hoy mi padre está de mala leche.
7. Mi hermano está nervioso hoy.
8. Mi familia está en el restaurante pero yo estoy en casa.
9. El perro está jugando en el parque.

Exercise 66: Let's now have a look at ser and estar in a bigger text and in more than one tense rather than in isolation and only in the present. Highlight the ser verbs one colour and the estar verbs another.

Mi nombre es Ana y soy estudiante de medicina. Estoy muy emocionada porque hoy tuve mi primera clase práctica en el hospital. El doctor García fue muy amable y me explicó todo. Estaba un poco nerviosa al principio, pero pronto me sentí cómoda en el ambiente hospitalario. Mi compañera de clase, Laura, también estaba allí. Ella es muy inteligente y siempre está dispuesta a ayudar. Después de la clase, estuvimos en la cafetería del hospital. El café estaba delicioso y el ambiente era muy agradable. Estoy segura de que seremos grandes médicas en el futuro. Estar en el hospital me hace sentir feliz y sé que es el lugar donde quiero estar.

The correct usage of "por"

Por and para

There are also two words for "for" in Spanish. This can cause some confusion but once again there are some guidelines we can follow to help us select the correct one.

When to use "por"?

- because of/due to → No quiero hablar por los nervios.
- around/along/over there → Voy a viajar por España.
- duration of time → Voy a ir por tres semanas.
- thanks for (receiving something) → Gracias por el regalo.
- sorry for → Lo siento por llegar tarde .
- motivation/out of → Lo hago por interés.
- money/exchange → Compré el libro por €20.
- to replace "per" → Hago la natación tres veces por semana.
- about (asking about something) → Karen siempre pregunta por el jefe.
- to be in favour with "estar" → Mi amigo está por los derechos de los animales .

Exercise 67: Translate the following sentences which all contain "por" and explain why "por" has been used for each one using the descriptions above.

1. Toco la guitarra por interés.
2. ¿Hay una librería por aquí?
3. Mi madre compró las entradas para ver George Ezra en Chepstow por €110.
4. Muchas gracias por tu ayuda.
5. Te doy este libro por el tuyo.
6. Saka falló el penalti más importante por la presión.
7. El equipo va a hacer un recorrido (a tour) por Asia en el verano.
8. Tengo que entrenarme cuatro veces por semana.

durante

When you can use "during" in English the likelihood is you can use "durante" in Spanish. This denotes the duration something has lasted or will last. It can even sometimes replace the word "for" such as in the example below.

durante muchos años (for many years)

Morphology: morphological families.

Words which share a common root word belong to the same morphological family. The English word flower is related to florist, flourish, flourishing, flowered etc. The same happens in Spanish with una flor, florecer, florista etc. Use a dictionary to find words in the same morphological family as "cocinar" (to cook).

cocinar

The correct usage of "para"

Por and para

There are many books about "por" and "para" but hopefully these two pages will suffice in clarifying when to use one and not the other. Check below for the rules of when to use "para" in a sentence.

When to use "para"?

- to define who a recipient is → Este regalo es para mi amigo.
- to replace "in order to" + infinitive → Practico para mejorar.
- deadlines → Tienes que hacer los deberes para el viernes.
- direction of travel → Vamos para Chepstow.
- purpose or intention → Voy a comprar arroz para elaborar una paella.
- at all/absolutely not → No me gustan las gambas para nada.
- to not be in the mood for something → Hoy no estoy para bromas.

Exercise 68: Translate the following sentences which all contain "para" and explain why "para" has been used for each one using the descriptions above.

1. El estudiante repasa sus apuntes para sacar buenas notas.
2. Ella fue a España el año pasado y para ella fue una experiencia inolvidable.
3. Tienes que probar el jamón ibérico para aprovechar de la riqueza gastronómica española.
4. Estoy muy ocupado porque para el lunes tengo que hacer mis deberes de ciencias.
5. James Ward Prowse practica mucho para mejorar su técnica.
6. ¿Para quién es?
7. Los estudiantes asistieron al Senedd para representar el colegio.
8. El profesor no está para excusas.

Exercise 69: Let's now have a look at por and para in a bigger text rather than in isolated sentences. Highlight instances of por and para and write between the lines why each was used.

Tomás tenía un objetivo: quería aprender a tocar la guitarra para tocar en un concierto. Practicaba por horas todos los días para lograr su sueño de ser un gran músico. Un día, Tomás recibió un mensaje con una invitación para una audición en una banda bien conocida. La audición sería para el próximo sábado. El día de la audición, Tomás se preparó y fue para el lugar indicado. Tocó la guitarra con pasión y fue seleccionado. Estaba muy contento por haber logrado su objetivo.

Asking questions

When to ask questions?

You're most likely going to ask a question in the conversation part of the speaking exam. "Asking questions" itself isn't written on the course specification but "interrogatives" is and so is "interrogative forms of verbs" (forming questions using verbs in the 2nd person). If you want to go beyond the obvious "¿y tú?" (more on usted later) you will ask a question using a verb, an interrogative or both.

Interrogative structures.

If it helps you to remember then think of an interrogation when you see the word "interrogative". These are small words which we use to start questions with. The most common ones are:

¿qué?	→	what?
¿quién?	→	who?
¿cómo?	→	how?
¿cuándo?	→	when?
¿dónde?	→	where?
¿cuál?	→	which one/what?
¿adónde?	→	to where?
¿por qué?	→	why?
¿cuánto?	→	how much?

how much or many

"Cuánto" which means "how much/many" is an interrogative adjective so must agree with the noun it is modifying in gender and number.

¿Cuántos gatos tienes?
(How many cats do you have?)

¿Cuánta *gente hay?
(How many people are there?)

Example sentences.

What do you study?	→	¿Qué estudias?
Where do you live?	→	¿Dónde vives?

*Remember that "la gente" is a collective noun and always takes 3rd person singular verbs and feminine adjectives.

The interrogative form of verbs.

As well using the interrogatives above to ask questions we can be more direct by using a verb in the 2nd or 3rd person which typically forms a "do you" style question in English.

¿Juegas al fútbol?	→	Do you play football?
¿Tocas la guitarra?	→	Do you play the guitar?

Morphology: nouns ending with -ción.

Nouns ending with -ción in Spanish are always feminine. The -ción suffix is similar to the -tion suffix used commonly in English. Translate the nouns below which all end with -ción.

Spanish word	English meaning	Spanish word	English meaning
la intención	→ intention	la relación	→
la acción	→	la sección	→
la audición	→	la infección	→

What other words ending with -tion can you think of in English?

Opinion phrases and questions.

If you're wanting to ask somebody's opinion about something you can do this by using any of the opinion phrases from page 11. All that is required is to change the "me" to a "te" (for the tú form) or a "le" for he/she or if you want to be polite to your teacher, an adult or a stranger.

If asking an opinion about a plural noun verbs like "gusta" in opinion phrases like "te gusta" must change to "gustan". This is the same for all other opinion phrases starting with "me" in the first person.

Noun opinions.

Do you like Marmite?	→	¿Te gusta el Marmite?	If I wanted to change the register and add a sense of formality or politeness here I could change "te" to "le".
Do you like cats?	→	¿Te gustan los gatos?
Are you interested in music?	→	¿Te interesa la música?

Verb opinions.

Do you like reading?	→	¿Te gusta leer?	"me" is for I, "te" is for you, "le" is for he, she or you formal, "nos" is for we, "os" is for you all and "les" is for them.
Does he like studying?	→	¿Le gusta estudiar?
Do you like working?	→	¿Te gusta trabajar?

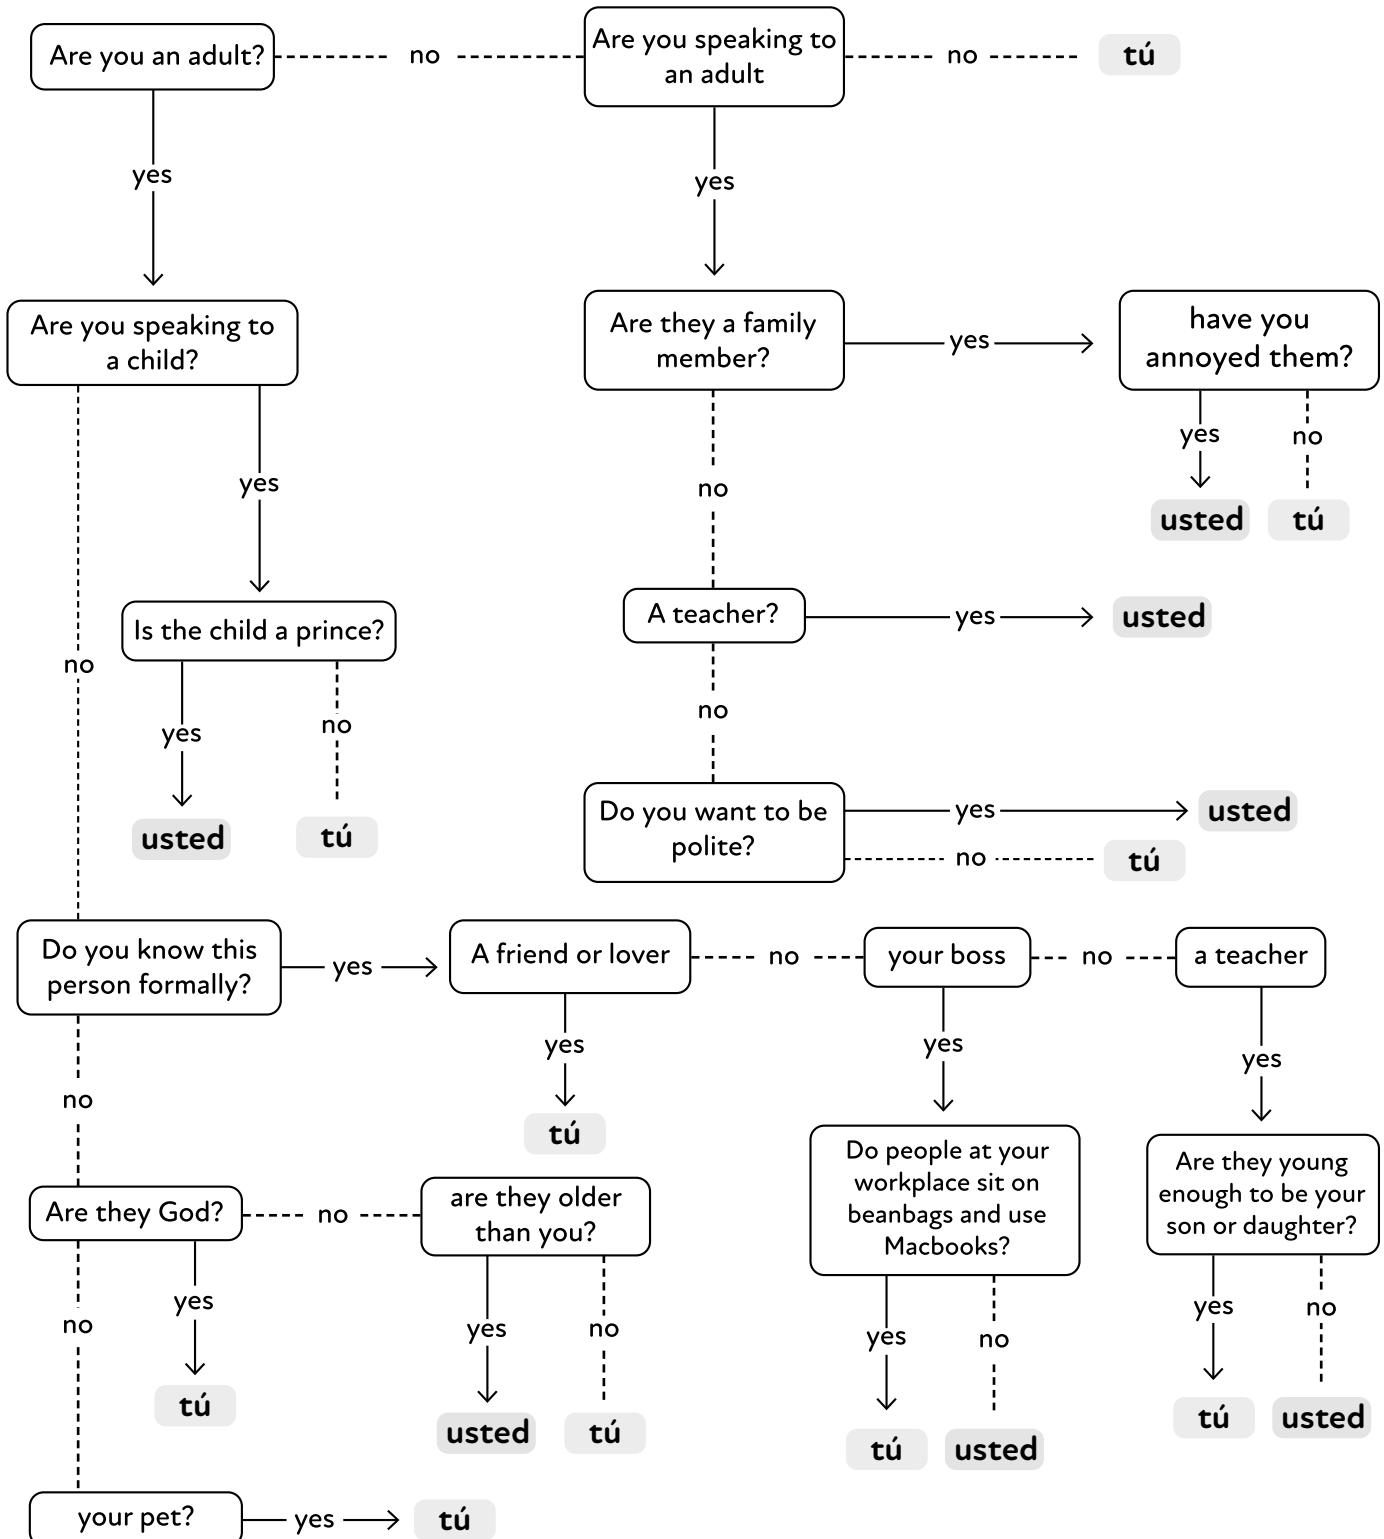

Exercise 70: Translate these common questions asked of smart speakers, which all contain an interrogative (1-11) or an interrogative verb (12-22), from Spanish into English.

1. Alexa, ¿cuándo abre el Mercadona?
Alexa, when does Mercadona open?
2. Alexa, ¿qué restaurantes hay en Chepstow?
3. Alexa, ¿dónde hay una farmacia?
4. Alexa, ¿a qué hora abre la piscina?
5. Alexa, ¿qué tiempo hace hoy?
6. Alexa, ¿qué hora es?
7. Alexa, ¿cuáles son las tres leyes de la robótica?
8. Alexa, ¿qué fue primero el huevo o la gallina?
9. Alexa, ¿cuál es el significado de la vida?
10. Alexa, ¿cuál es tu color favorito?
11. Alexa, ¿cuántos años tienes?
12. Alexa, ¿tú duermes?
13. Alexa, ¿crees en fantasmas?
14. Alexa, ¿existen los extraterrestres?
15. Alexa, ¿conoces a Siri?
16. Alexa, ¿eres un robot?
17. Alexa, ¿eres Skynet?
18. Alexa, ¿tienes mascotas?
19. Alexa, ¿quieres ser mi novia?
20. Alexa, ¿puedes hacer beatbox?
21. Alexa, ¿eres inteligente?
22. Alexa, ¿siempre escuchas?

Usted and tú

What's the difference between "usted" and "tú"?

There are different modes of address in Spanish. You can address somebody in the 2nd person (tú) or the 3rd person (usted). The tú form is often used with friends, people your age and people you're very familiar (on first name terms) with, while usted is reserved for formal situations and is way to be polite and show respect towards others based on their age or the relationship you have with them. Choosing one or the other is more nuanced than the flow chart below suggests but it's a good start!

Exercise 71: Would you address the following in the tú (tú), usted (ud) form or either (e)?

- | | | |
|--|--|---|
| <input type="radio"/> tu hermano menor | <input type="radio"/> un camarero joven | <input type="radio"/> Dios |
| <input type="radio"/> tu abuela | <input type="radio"/> el Rey Charles | <input type="radio"/> *alguien que respetas |
| <input type="radio"/> tu vecina vieja | <input type="radio"/> el Príncipe George | <input type="radio"/> un animal (no tu mascota) |
| <input type="radio"/> tu gato | <input type="radio"/> un bebé | <input type="radio"/> la madre de tu amigo |
| <input type="radio"/> tu profesor | <input type="radio"/> tu novio/a | <input type="radio"/> tu bisabuelo |
| <input type="radio"/> tu mejor amigo | <input type="radio"/> tu perro | <input type="radio"/> tu hermana mayor |
| <input type="radio"/> tu jefe | <input type="radio"/> tus tíos | <input type="radio"/> la cocinera de la escuela |
| <input type="radio"/> el/la director/a del colegio | <input type="radio"/> tus padres | <input type="radio"/> el primer ministro |

Exercise 72: Conjugate these verbs into the 2nd (tú) or 3rd person (ud) in the present simple tense to form the interrogative form of a verb. Irregular target conjugations are marked with an asterisk.

1. Salir (tú)

10. *Pensar (tú)

19. *Ir (tú)

2. Hablar (ud)

11. Permitir (ud)

20. *Ir (ud)

3. Poner (tú)

12. *Querer (tú)

21. Pasar (tú)

4. *Seguir (ud)

13. Esperar (ud)

22. Creer (tú)

5. Llevar (tú)

14. Estar (tú)

23. Dar (ud)

6. Buscar (tú)

15. Saber (ud)

24. Entender (tú)

7. *Tener (ud)

16. Llegar (tú)

25. Hablar (tú)

8. *Ser (ud)

17. *Poder (tú)

26. *Poder (ud)

9. Visitar (tú)

18. Disfrutar (ud)

27. Gastar (tú)

The present subjunctive

Present subjunctive conjugations.

If you can conjugate a verb in the present simple then you will be fine with the conjugations for the present subjunctive.

Understanding when to use the subjunctive will be a challenge but we will use the acronym WOOP to guide us. Over the next few pages we will look at certain conditions which trigger the present subjunctive. We will fire off the present subjunctive with the regular conjugation patterns below (you will find yourself coming back to this page to review them!) Any irregular verbs on the following pages are marked with an asterisk.

Once again, the verb you are planning to use in the present subjunctive must agree with its subject. To begin with we're going to remove the -ar, -er or -ir ending and add:

Verbs ending with -ar.

yo	→	-e
tú	→	-es
él/ella/usted	→	-e
nosotros	→	-emos
vosotros	→	-éis
ellos/ellas	→	-en

Verbs ending with -er and -ir.

yo	→	-a
tú	→	-as
él/ella/usted	→	-a
nosotros	→	-amos
vosotros	→	-áis
ellos/ellas	→	-an

Exercise 73: Conjugate the verbs into the present subjunctive using the table for support. Irregular verbs are marked with an asterisk.

1. If reciclar means to recycle then you recycle is:
recicles
2. If estudiar means to study then we study is:
3. If tener means to have then I have is:
4. If visitar means to visit then she visits is:
5. If ir means to go then they go is:
6. If saber means to know then I know is:
7. If hacer means to do then I do is:
8. If prestar means to lend then you lend is:
9. If leer means to read then he reads is:
10. If mirar means to watch then they watch is:
11. If trabajar means to work then we work is:
12. If celebrar means to celebrate then I celebrate is:
13. If ser means to be then I am is:
14. If intentar means to try then you try is:
15. If correr means to run then you all run is:

Common irregulars.

Some very important high-frequency verbs are irregular and don't follow the pattern above. On the right you'll see them in the infinitive form and then the new form in the present subjunctive 1st person.

	infinitive		pres. sub	infinitive		pres. sub tener	→	tenga	ser	→	sea
	hacer	→	haga	ir	→	vaya
	salir	→	salga	saber	→	sepa
	poner	→	ponga	decir	→	diga
	poder	→	pueda	estar	→	esté
	haber	→	haya	venir	→	venga

WOOP.

We are going to use the acronym WOOP to help us remember when to use the present subjunctive. It stands for wishes, opinions, obligations and possibilities. This is a variation of the WOOPA acronym recommended by Gordan and Cynthia from Lightspeed Spanish. The only 3rd party recommendation I will make in this workbook is that, if you're still confused after reading the following section on the subjunctive, then go and buy Demystifying the Spanish Subjunctive and subscribe to Lightspeed Spanish on Youtube! It will do the world of good for your Spanish!

WOOP - Wishes.

When wishing or hoping for something to happen we have to use the present subjunctive in Spanish. The word "que" meaning "that" will be pivotal as typically the following conjugated verb will be subjunctive. There is one side note though. If the subject is wishing something for themselves this does not require the subjunctive but rather an infinitive verb.

Espero que celebres. → I hope (that) you celebrate.

Espero ser futbolista. → I hope to become a footballer.

Wishing subjunctive starters espero que + subjunctive → I hope that deseo que + subjunctive → I wish that esperar (to hope)

espero	→	I hope
esperas	→	you hope
espera	→	s/he hopes esperamos	→	we hope
esperáis	→	you hope
esperán	→	they hope

Exercise 74: We are now going to combine the present subjunctive conjugation patterns from the previous page with the wishing condition above. Be careful as some of the following translations into Spanish will not require the subjunctive as the subject is wishing something for themselves.

1. El público espera que el político diga la verdad.
2. Espero que mi madre descanse un poco.
3. La profesora espera que sus estudiantes entiendan la lección.
4. El estudiante espera nunca ver el subjuntivo en su vida.
5. I hope to go to (ir a) Madrid next week.
6. My teacher hopes that I study (estudiar) in order to pass (aprobar) the exam.
7. The parents hope that their children read (leer) in school.
8. The parents hope the baby doesn't cry (llorar) tonight.

WOOP - Opinion triggers.

The first "o" stands for opinions. It's important to note that the following opinion phrases are all followed by the word "que" which means "that". If you are giving a regular opinion such as "I like Spanish" this would not trigger the subjunctive however "I like that Spanish is useful" would!

What does an opinion trigger look like?

es + adjective + que + subjunctive verb

The structure above can be used to give a positive or negative opinion about anything. You can place any adjective in the structure and any verb. Although the examples below start with "es" for "it is" there is the option to use "qué" instead which in this context would mean "how".

Es bueno que sea fácil. → It's good that it's easy.
adj sub

Es malo que no reciclemos. → It's bad that we don't recycle.
adj sub

Exercise 75: Let's practise forming the opinion structure which triggers the subjunctive. Re-read the box above for support if you need to.

1. If interesante means interesting then "it's interesting that" would be:
2. If mejor means best then "it's best that" would be:
3. If malo means bad then "how bad that" would be:
4. If fantástico means fantastic then "it's fantastic that" would be:

Exercise 76: We're now going to add a verb in the present subjunctive to the end of our subjunctive trigger. You'll be conjugating verbs according to the conjugation patterns from a few pages ago.

1. If interesante means interesting then "it's interesting that they speak (hablar)" would be:
2. If mejor means best then "it's best that you ignore (ignorar)" would be:
3. If malo means bad then "how bad that they don't wear uniform (llevar uniforme)" would be:
4. If fantástico means fantastic then "it's fantastic that we're winning (ganar)" would be:

Opinion phrases + que.

Another way to use the subjunctive when giving an opinion is to use an opinion phrase followed by "que" (that) followed by a present subjunctive verb.

Me interesa que digas eso. → It interests me that you say that.
opinion phrase sub

Me encanta que hablemos a menudo. → I love that we speak often.
opinion phrase sub

Exercise 77: Colour code the subjunctive opinion phrases which all include the word "que" (that).

me gusta que	le impresiona que	he/she prefers that	le encanta que
odio que	I love that	it winds them up that	they like that te gusta que	les gusta que	I can't stand that	do you like that it impresses him that	no soporto que	I hate that	it worries me that prefiere que	me preocupa que	nos gusta que	I like that me interesa que	me encanta que	it interests me that	it's annoying that les enloquece que	molesta que	we like that	he/she loves that Exercise 78: Translate the following sentences starting from Spanish to English and then English to Spanish. Verbs and verb phrases are provided for you in bold.

1. Me gusta mucho que estudiemos la educación física.
2. A los padres les enloquece que el uniforme sea tan (so) caro.
3. No soporto que uses las redes sociales todo el tiempo.
4. He prefers that his parents buy (comprar) pizza.
5. They like that the waiter speaks English and Spanish (hablar).
6. They love that the house has (tener) a swimming pool.
7. He is impressed that the students read so much (ler tanto).

WOOP - Obligation triggers.

Next up is the second "o" which stands for "obligations".

What is an obligation trigger?

If somebody modifies their behaviour, does something or changes the way they do something as a result of an instruction, demand or request from another party then the present subjunctive is used. These are called obligation triggers as somebody is being obliged to do something by somebody else. Similar to the opinions section there are two sub-categories of obligation structures which we will explore in more detail below.

Es + adjective of obligation + que + subjunctive verb

The same structure that we saw two pages ago with the first of the two opinion triggers can be reused to form an obligation trigger. Below you'll see some common adjectives denoting obligation and some example sentence.

Es esencial que lo hagas lo antes posible. → It's essential that you do it as soon as possible.

Es importante que leas la información → It's important that you read the information.

Obligation adjectives

esencial	→	essential	preferible	→	preferable
necesario	→	necessary	aconsejable	→	advisable
importante	→	important
preciso	→	essential
vital	→	vital
imprescindible	→	essential

Obligation verb phrase + que + subjunctive

As well as adjectives we can also ask somebody to do something using a verb followed by "que" (that). Remember that if somebody does something as a result of a request (be it polite or more of an order/demand) then you must use the present subjunctive.

Quiero que vayas a Mercadona. → I want you to go to Mercadona.

Prefiero que hablemos de eso después → I prefer that we speak about that afterwards.

Obligation verbs

pedir que	→	to request that	sugerir que	→	to suggest that recomendar que	→	to recommend that	aconsejar que	→	to advise that querer que	→	to want that	insistir en que	→	to insist on preferir que	→	to prefer that	mandar que	→	to demand that Exercise 79: Translate the sentences below and state for each one whether the sentence contains an obligation or opinion trigger. Begin from Spanish into English and then from English into Spanish.

1. Es aconsejable que lleves gafas de sol.
2. A mis amigos y yo nos gusta que haya nuevos libros en la biblioteca.
3. La directora del colegio prohíbe que los chicos fumen (to smoke) en el lavabo.
4. A los clientes les encanta que el café sea buenísimo y bastante barato.
5. Mi amigo quiere que salgamos (to go out) esta noche.
6. El alcalde (mayor) pide que los ciudadanos cuiden (to look after) de los espacios verdes.
7. Es preocupante que haya muchas personas sin techo en Madrid.
8. El profesor manda que los estudiantes no saquen fotos en el museo.
9. I think it's best that we listen (escuchar).
10. The father advises that his son takes off (quitar) the watch (el reloj).
11. The owner (dueño/a) demands that they leave (salir) now.
12. The teachers advise that the students don't spend their money (gastar dinero) on sweets.
13. The lawyer (el abogadoss) dislikes that his client doesn't tell the truth (decir la verdad).
14. It's necessary that we spend time (pasar tiempo) with them.
15. The tourists are fascinated that the building (el edificio) is so beautiful.
16. The lady loves that her grandchildren (sus nietos) are so polite (educado).

Subjunctive set phrases.

¡Viva!	→	long live/hurrah
¡Dígame!	→	tell me
Aunque sea duro	→	although it's difficult
Ojalá hubiera más	→	I wish there were more
Para que sepas	→	so that you know
Sea como sea	→	either way

The subjunctive has a reputation for being quite tricky but we can employ set phrases to help us include it in our writing and speech. See the speaking tool kit at the end of this booklet for an A* lifeline in the speaking exam.

WOOP - Possibility triggers.

The subjunctive is commonly associated with the expression of doubt or possibility. Similar to opinions and obligations there are two different structures we can use to express these.

What is a possibility trigger?

If doubt exists then the subjunctive mood is used. Conversely, if certainty or truth exist then the indicative mood is used. Have a look at example sentence one below in which the existence of doubt fires off the subjunctive, then read example sentence two where absolute truth leads to the indicative mood.

1. Es improbable que sepa español. → It's unlikely that he knows Spanish.
2. Es verdad que sabe español. → It's true that he knows Spanish.

Es + adjective of possibility + que + subjunctive verb

We've seen this structure two times already so hopefully you're used to it by now. Below you'll see some common adjectives denoting possibility to complement it.

Possibility adjectives

posible	→	possible
imposible	→	impossible probable	→	likely improbable	→	unlikely
dudoso	→	doubtful
incierto	→	uncertain

Absolute certainty.

If you're certain that something is true then the subjunctive is not needed. If there is any doubt in your mind about something then it's best to use it!

Possibility verb phrase + que + subjunctive

Similar to the other two triggers possibility and doubt can be expressed using a verb followed by "que" (that) and a present subjunctive verb.

Possibility verbs

no pensar que	→	to not think that no creer que	→	to not believe that dudar que	→	to doubt that no estar seguro que	→	to not be sure that no suponer que	→	to not suppose that

Pensar and creer.

Verbs which follow "pensar" (to think) and "creer" (to believe) typically take the indicative but the inclusion of a "no" fires off the subjunctive.

Creo que está por aquí → I believe it's (located) around here.

Exercise 80: Translate the sentences below and state for each one whether the sentence contains a wish, obligation, opinion or possibility trigger. Begin from Spanish into English and then from English into Spanish. Verb phrases and some nouns are given in bold.

1. Dudo que mi amigo vaya a llegar a tiempo porque siempre llega tarde.
2. Quiero que limpies tu habitación antes de salir.
3. Me gusta que podamos comer lo que queremos.
4. El ministro recomienda que usemos más la energía renovable.
5. Es imprescindible que hagamos algo para proteger el medio ambiente.
6. El entrenador insiste en que yo haga ejercicio todos los días.
7. Me gusta que el hotel esté al lado de la playa con vistas del mar.
8. Es posible que en Madrid desayunemos churros con chocolate en San Ginés.
9. I hope that you enjoy (disfrutar) Machu Pichu.
10. I recommend that you visit (visitar) Patagonia! There they speak Welsh and Spanish!
11. It's likely that the locals (los lugareños) don't speak (hablar) English.
12. I don't believe it's (ser) a good idea to go (ir) with all your money.
13. I insist that you go (ir) to the bullring (la plaza de toros) with me.
14. It's important that you don't believe (crear) in the stereotypes (estereotipos).
15. I don't think it's (ser) necessary to watch (ver) a football match (un partido de fútbol).

"Quizás" (perhaps) and "Para que" (so that).

"Quizá/s" (perhaps/maybe) can be used with the present indicative and the present subjunctive. When used with the former the idea that something is more likely to happen comes across whereas with the latter it becomes clear that something is less likely to happen.

"Para que" means "so that" and merits some attention as it's mentioned on the specification grammar list.

Ahorro dinero para que podamos ir de vacaciones.
(I save money so that we can go on holiday).

Limpio para que la casa no esté sucia.
(I clean so the house isn't dirty).

A present subjunctive trigger that you already know!

"Cuando" (when) is a subjunctive trigger when referring to a future event but be careful, if you're ever referring to a habitual action or routine event then it's not a trigger! It's also not a trigger when used as an interrogative to find out when (date and time) somebody is going to do something.

Cuando voy a Monmouth siempre tomo un café. → When I go to Monmouth I always have a coffee.
habitual event

Cuando llegues tienes que llamarme. → When you arrive you have to call me.
future event

Exercise 81: Translate the sentences below, all containing the word "cuando" (when), from English into Spanish. If you get the feeling that a sentence is referring to a habitual action then you don't need to use the present subjunctive. Some sentences may include a WOOP present subjunctive trigger as well.

1. When I visit (visitar) my parents my dad always makes (elaborar) a curry.
2. When you finish (terminar) the book we can discuss (discutir) it.
3. When I go on holiday (ir de vacaciones) we always go (ir) to the same (mismo) restaurant.
4. When the train leaves (salir) I'm going to do (trabajar) a little work.
5. When the sun sets (ponerse el sol) we have dinner (cenar) in the garden.
6. When the baby cries (llorar) I recommend that you play music (poner música).
7. When we arrive (llegar) to the beach we're going to look for (buscar) a bar.
8. I practise (practicar) for when the time comes (llegar el momento).
9. When you go (ir) to the pharmacy can you get (recoger) cough syrup (el jarabe para la tos)?
10. When he enters (entrar) the waiter already knows (saber) his order (su pedido).
11. When you have (tener) free time can you do me a favour (hacerme un favor)?
12. When she goes to town (ir al centro) she always takes (llevar) an umbrella.
13. When you're in (estar en) Ramsgate next you should visit (visitar) the beach.

The imperfect subjunctive

Imperfect subjunctive conjugations.

The present subjunctive is great when referring to the present but what if we want to refer to wishes, opinions, obligations and possibilities in the past or even the future? Your GCSE exam board only expect you to have a receptive knowledge of this which means you can recognise it when you hear it or read it but the expectation is that you won't be able to produce it yourself.

The imperfect subjunctive is triggered with the same WOOP conditions we have already seen and can help us give subjunctive statements in the imperfect, preterite and conditional tenses.

present		imperfect		preterite		conditional
es esencial que	→	era esencial que	→	fue esencial que	→	sería esencial que

The imperfect subjunctive is weird because there are two grammatically correct, and different, conjugation patterns to choose from. Both forms for -ar verbs and for -er and -ir verbs are below.

Conjugation patterns.

To 100% accurately conjugate a verb in the imperfect subjunctive the endings need to be added to the stem of the verb taken from the they form in the preterite tense. If you've got this far then you may have an intuitive sense of what those stems are but if you're unsure then for accuracy's sake it's worth checking.

Remember, if you're in year 10 or 11, you're not expected to be able to produce these kinds of structures yet so don't stress if you're finding it a bit much. Below is a list of the most common irregular verbs with their new stems.

-ar verbs

yo	→	-ara
tú	→	-aras
él/ella/usted	→	-ara
nosotros	→	-áramos
vosotros	→	-arais
ellos/ellas	→	-aran

-ar verbs

yo	→	-ase
tú	→	-ases
él/ella/usted	→	-ase
nosotros	→	-ásemos
vosotros	→	-aseis
ellos/ellas	→	-asen

-er and -ir verbs.

yo	→	-iera
tú	→	-ieras
él/ella/usted	→	-iera
nosotros	→	-iéramos
vosotros	→	-ierais
ellos/ellas	→	-ieran

-er and -ir verbs.

yo	→	-iese
tú	→	-ieses
él/ella/usted	→	-iese
nosotros	→	-iésemos
vosotros	→	-ieseis
ellos/ellas	→	-iesen

Common irregular stems.

All of the verbs which are irregular in the normal preterite tense are irregular in the imperfect subjunctive. "Ir" and "ser" need some special attention and so are conjugated in full to save confusion.

Infinitives and new stems.

tener	→	tuv
estar	→	estuv
hacer	→	hic
poder	→	pud
querer	→	quis
saber	→	sup

"Ir" and "Ser".

yo	→	fuera
tú	→	fueras
él/ella/usted	→	fuera
nosotros	→	fuéramos
vosotros	→	fuerais
ellos/ellas	→	fueran

Using "quisiera" to say "I would like".

Saying "I want" is considered a little abrupt in English when we could opt to use "I would like". The same is true in Spanish with "quiero". "Quisiera" can be used to make very polite requests. Consider the three different ways to ask the same thing below using different tenses which vary the tone.

Quiero saber lo que perdí ayer. → I want to know what I missed yesterday (present tense).

Quería saber lo que perdí ayer. → I wanted to know what I missed yesterday. (imperfect tense).

Quisiera saber lo que perdí ayer. → I would like to know what I missed yesterday (imp. sub).

Exercise 82: Change these present subjunctive sentences into the imperfect subjunctive. The target translation is in English in brackets. Remember that the trigger must be in the target tense and the present subjunctive verb needs to be converted into the imperfect subjunctive.

1. Es necesario que estudiemos (it was necessary that we study).
2. Es importante que reciclemos en casa (it was important that we recycle at home).
3. Es posible que sepa (it was possible that he knew).
4. Es mejor que lo compres (it was best that you bought it).
5. Es improbable que él llegue a tiempo (it was unlikely that he arrived on time).
6. El cajero quiere que pagemos (the cashier wanted us to pay).
7. Espero que tengas un buen día (I hoped that you had a nice day).
8. Es impresionante que Miguel toque la guitarra (it was impressive that Miguel played the guitar)
9. Me gusta que la educación física sea práctica (I liked that P.E was practical).
10. Es bueno que Luisa sea fuerte (it was good that Luisa was strong).
11. Es imprescindible que lo terminemos (it was essential that we finish it).

The imperative

What is the imperative?

The imperative is another mood and is used when you tell somebody to do something or not do something. If you're accustomed to telling Alexa (other smart speakers are available) to do something then you use the imperative! In this section we're going to look at affirmative commands (do something!) and negative commands (don't do something!) in the tú (you) form for people we are familiar with.

Affirmative tú commands.

So, you want to tell a friend, a relative, Alexa, a pet or somebody familiar to you (your age or below) to do something. It's really quite simple. All you have to do is know which verb you want to use and conjugate it in the 3rd person singular form of the present tense (he/she).

Common irregulars.

Of course there are some irregulars. The following eight verbs don't follow the pattern and in the affirmative tú form take the following form.

ser (to be)	→	sé	hacer (to do)	→	haz
ir (to go)	→	ve	decir (to say)	→	di
tener (to have)	→	ten	poner (to put)	→	pon
venir (to come)	→	ven	salir (to leave)	→	sal

¡Sé educado!	→	Be polite!	¡Hazlo!	→	Do it!
¡Di la verdad!	→	Tell the truth!	¡Habla!	→	Talk!
¡Ven aquí!	→	Come here!	¡Sal!	→	Leave!

Exercise 83: Translate these smart speaker commands, which all contain an affirmative tú command (in bold), from Spanish into English.

- Alexa, busca vídeos de GothamChess en YouTube.
- Alexa, baja el volumen en Fire TV.
- Alexa, abre Netflix.
- Alexa, activa el modo noche.
- Alexa, pon una canción de Rick Astley.
- Alexa, pon música relajante.
- Alexa, añade "cena con amigos" a mi calendario.
- Alexa, pon la alarma a las 6 a.m.
- Alexa, dime mis recordatorios.
- Alexa, apaga la alarma.
- Alexa, lee mis notificaciones.
- Alexa, llama a mi hermano.
- Alexa, pon sonidos de lluvia.
- Alexa, busca series españolas en Netflix.

So we've learnt how to give an affirmative command (do something!), but how do we form a negative command (don't do something!)?

Negative tú commands.

To accurately form a negative tú command we're going to apply our subjunctive knowledge (I told you you'd be going back to that page a few times) because we need to use the present subjunctive form of the verb in the 2nd person (you) preceded by a negative word like "no" or "nunca" (never). In the examples below all of the highlighted verbs are negative tú commands and all are in the present subjunctive.

¡No toques eso!	→ Don't touch that!	¡Nunca fumes !	→ Never smoke!
¡No hables !	→ Don't talk!	¡Nunca hagas eso!	→ Never do that!
¡No llegues tarde!	→ Don't arrive late!	¡Nunca mientas !	→ Never lie!

Exercise 84: Translate these words of advice for prospective visitors to the La Tomatina festival in Spain.

1. ¡No lleves ropa nueva!
2. ¡No olvides gafas y gorra!
3. ¡No tires objetos duros!
4. ¡No lleves objetos de valor!

Exercise 85: Convert these school rules from their infinitive form into a negative imperative tú command. Do this by conjugating the main verb into the you singular form in the present subjunctive.

1. If fumar means to smoke then don't smoke is:
2. If comer chicle is to chew gum then don't chew gum is:
3. If llevar zapatillas is to wear trainers then don't wear trainers is:
4. If ser grosero is to be rude then don't be rude is:
5. If tirar basura is to litter then don't litter is:
6. If llevar joyas is to wear jewellery then don't wear jewellery is:
7. If correr en los pasillos is to run in the corridor then don't run in the corridor is:

The speaking tool kit

What is the speaking tool kit?

The speaking tool kit is a list of six functional chunks. You will learn what each one means, what they look like in a sentence and their applicability conditions. After the speaking exam you will reuse them during your writing exam. By remembering the functional chunks you will free up working memory space, reduce anxiety and gain confidence as you know that by including the functional chunks in your work you will be including A* structures. At the same time your working memory will be freed up to apply the functional chunks, attend to new tasks such as retrieving vocabulary and problem-solve. The tool kit doesn't guarantee you the top grades but it's a big push in the right direction.

Why are there only six functional chunks?

I have selected six to limit the demands on your working memory which is proven to be limited. It is claimed that the information-processing capacity of young adults is around seven elements, referred to as chunks”, regardless of whether the elements are digits, letters, words, or other units.

Back up a second, what is working memory?

Working memory is quite unimpressive at first glance. It has a very limited capacity – it appears to have a fixed range of five to nine items, which cannot be improved by training. We can essentially see working memory as those things that you can keep active in your mind at the same time. As much as working memory is a disappointment, long-term memory is exceptional. It has unlimited storage for unknown durations of time. It is where we store declarative (knowledge of facts) and procedural knowledge (knowledge of how we do things). (Adam Robbins, 2021).

What made me decide upon the six?

To achieve highly in the speaking and writing exam you not only have to successfully refer to the past, present and future but also use complex structures and give excellent, unambiguous and justified opinions. The six functional chunks I have selected will allow you to do this and thus help you in achieving highly. You have one year (presuming you are introduced to these at the end of year 10) to remember the functional chunks and get to grips with how to use them successfully. We will revisit them throughout the year. Each one has been thoughtfully selected and serves a purpose.

What does the speaking mark scheme say?

The role play (top band): message accurately conveyed with accurate grammatical structures.

The photocard (top band): Excellent language with a wide variety of grammatical structures, including complex structures. High level of accuracy with few minor errors which occur when attempting more complex structures or vocabulary. References to past, present and future events are successful.

The speaking conversation (top band): Excellent language with a wide variety of grammatical structures, including complex structures. High level of accuracy with only a few minor errors which occur when attempting more complex structures or vocabulary. References to past, present and future events are successful.

Functional chunk 1: si pudiera, me gustaría + infinitive verb.

What does this chunk do?

To use subject specific terminology this chunk will see you using the imperfect subjunctive mood, a conditional verb and an infinitive structure. All in one!

What does it mean/is there an alternative?

“If I could, I would like to + infinitive verb” and yes, go and check the "complex if structures" box on page 38 which contains several other very complex structures.

What does it look like in a sentence?

Employment – Si pudiera, me gustaría ser un profesor porque en mi opinión es un trabajo importante.

Festivals – Si pudiera, me gustaría ir a la Tomatina porque es una fiesta increíble.

Free time and leisure – Si pudiera, me gustaría jugar al rugby porque me encanta el deporte.

Applicability conditions:

Tus planes/tu ‘x’ ideal/qué vas a hacer/qué harás

Functional chunk 2: es/son la leche.

What does this chunk do?

It seems simple but using these three words to justify a positive opinion shows that you are aware of idiom. Idiomatic language is always nice to read and peppered throughout a text adds a little oomph.

What does it mean/is there an alternative?

“It’s the best” and yes, you could also say “es la pera” which means “it is amazing”.

What does it look like in a sentence?

School and college studies – Estudio el arte, diría que es la leche.

Self and relationships – Me llevo muy bien con mi madre, es la leche.

Technology and social media – Siempre uso mi móvil para hablar con mis amigos, es la leche.

Applicability conditions:

Cuál es tu opinion/que piensas/justifica tu opinion/da tu opinión

What are applicability conditions?

Applicability conditions are the conditions which need to be present for you to use a given functional chunk. This is important as some functional chunks only work with references to certain time frames.

If you’re being asked to give an opinion you will need to know the vocabulary for opinión (opinion), justifica (justify), da (give and so on). When these are present they are the correct applicability conditions for functional chunk two and four.

Functional chunk 3: suelo/solía + infinitive verb.

What does this chunk do?

Suelo and solía both come from the verb soler which means to tend to do something. If you find conjugating verbs into the present and imperfect tense tricky then this chunk will allow you to use both freely and save your precious working memory for more pressing tasks.

What does it mean/is there an alternative?

“I usually/used to + verb” and yes, you could also say “tiendo a + infinitive verb” which means “I tend to + infinitive verb”.

What does it look like in a sentence?

School life – En colegio suelo ir a la biblioteca y leer libros.

Local areas of interest – En mi pueblo suelo ir al parque o visitar el castillo.

Applicability conditions:

Suelo: qué haces normalmente, normalmente.

Solía: en el pasado, cuando eras joven, antes

Functional chunk 4: me gusta que sea/n + agreeing adjective.

What does this chunk do?

To use subject specific terminology this functional chunk includes the present subjunctive in sea/n. It is also an opinion phrase which will force you to use a justifying adjective.

What does it mean/is there an alternative?

“I like that it is + adjective” and yes, you could use “es bueno que sea/n + adj” which means “it’s good that it is + adjective”.

What does it look like in a sentence?

Environment – No me gusta que los microplásticos sean perjudiciales a la vida marina.

Holidays – Normalmente voy de vacaciones con mi familia, me encanta que sea emocionante.

School and college studies – Mi mejor amigo estudia la historia y le gusta que sea tan interesante.

Applicability conditions:

Cuál es tu opinion/que piensas/justifica tu opinion/da tu opinión

What are applicability conditions?

Applicability conditions are the conditions which need to be present for you to use a given functional chunk. This is important as some functional chunks only work with references to certain time frames.

If you’re being asked to give an opinion you will need to know the vocabulary for opinión (opinion), justifica (justify), da (give and so on). When these are present they are the correct applicability conditions for functional chunk two and four.

Functional chunk 5: cuando sea mayor, voy a + infinitive.

What does this chunk do?

On using this functional chunk you will refer to the future with an impressive present subjunctive structure. You will also use the immediate future with “voy a + infinitive verb”.

What does it mean/is there an alternative?

“When I’m older, I’m going to + verb” and yes, you can be more specific and say “cuando tenga 30 años + future simple verb” replacing 30 with any number to say “when I am 30 + future simple verb”.

What does it look like in a sentence?

Post-16 study – Cuando sea mayor, voy a estudiar la historia, el español y la biología.

Travel and transport – Cuando sea mayor, voy a viajar por el mundo. Si pudiera, me gustaría ir a Perú.

Employment – Cuando sea mayor, voy a ser médica porque me interesa mucho.

Applicability conditions:

En el futuro/cuando seas mayor/tus planes

Functional chunk 6: decidimos + infinitive verb.

What does this chunk do?

By using this chunk you will refer to the past tense in the 1st person plural (we). The purpose of this chunk is to show that you can change a verb into the we form instead of always using the 1st person.

What does it mean/is there an alternative?

“We decided to + infinitive verb”. I can’t think of an alternative for this one I’m afraid!

What does it look like in a sentence?

School life – Durante el recreo decidimos ir al comedor y comer pizza.

Environment – En casa decidimos donar ropa antigua y usar más el transporte público.

Food and drink – Ayer decidimos comer comida rápida.

Applicability conditions:

Qué hiciste/la semana pasada/recientemete

What are applicability conditions?

Applicability conditions are the conditions which need to be present for you to use a given functional chunk. This is important as some functional chunks only work with references to certain time frames.

If you’re being asked to give an opinion you will need to know the vocabulary for opinión (opinion), justifica (justify), da (give and so on). When these are present they are the correct applicability conditions for functional chunk two and four.
